ABOUT RESTAURANT INSPECTIONS

This is a snapshot of the inspections conducted by the Marion and Polk County health departments.

Twice annually, licensed restaurants receive unannounced inspections that focus on food temperatures, food preparation practices, worker hygiene, dish-washing and sanitizing, and equipment and facility cleanliness.

Violations: Restaurant scores are based on a 100-point scale. Priority violations deduct 5 points, and priority foundation violations deduct 3 points. Violations recorded on consecutive inspections result in point deductions being doubled.

Scoring: Scores of 70 or higher are considered compliant. Restaurants scoring below 70 must be re-inspected within 30 days or face closure or other administrative action. Restaurants display a placard by the entrance to indicate whether they have passed their last inspection.

No measuring gauge, no bucket; just the nylon mesh clam bags, and by now a 75-yard walk back to the vehicle while holding it by the pinchers to see if there's something in the car to put it in. Can't think of anything. Back it went. See you next time. About another 10 minutes and a couple of cockles in that *$%#&@ mesh bag and what do you know? Another crab. A monster. A male. Back in the bay. Sniffle, snorf. I promised myself that I wasn't going to cry. So when I saw a couple more crabs, I didn't even check them out. In the interests of full disclosure, it was one of the best disappointing trips we've ever had.

Both Kay and I scored limits of cockles, many of them large.

But still (pun alert) it was nothing to crab about.

Sorry.

Next time, remember Seneca ... and Henry.

Late-breaking update: Phil, a long-time fishing and mushrooming buddy, said that his dad stalked crabs in his waders in Oregon bays for years with good success.

Thanks for sharing.

Better late than never.

THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK: The best time to go fishing is yesterday, according to all the anglers who I've talked to.

Yep, it's a keeper that didn't, ahem, keep. Hoping for a rematch next minus tide in Waldport. STATESMAN JOURNAL FILE

Indian Rapids and DeWitt Falls

The most challenging section of the run comes downstream of the islands. The river moves away from Highway 22 into a narrower, canyon-ish landscape, and begins a set of rapids known as Upper, Middle and Lower Indian rapids, followed by DeWitt Falls.

The upper and middle rapids are straightforward waves — pretty simple — but things get a bit more tricky. At Lower Indian Rapids, you'll see a spine of rocks in the middle of the river and it's not super clear where to go. Stay right of the rocks to avoid trouble, and then slowly make your way across the stream, to a center-left positioning to set up for DeWitt Falls, the biggest wave on this run.

DeWitt isn't a real waterfall by any stretch of the imagination. The river is funneled into a big drop on the left side with two waves ideal to splash everyone in the boat. It's the most thrilling part of the journey and just below, the river mellows into a pretty little canyon where we like to jump off the boat and float in our life jackets on hot days.

Lunch stop, boulder-dodging and more islands

After a mellow stretch of river, and an area where you'll need to avoid rocks, you reach North Santiam State Recreation Site.

There's a wonderful grassy spot and swimming hole on the right, which is great for lunch and swimming.

The river isn't super challenging below North Santiam, but there are a few islands and channels where you'll want to choose correctly.

Just below the lunch spot, the river splits again. I stay on river-right, dropping down rapids (and passing the state park boat ramp), that swing down below a beautiful forested cliff. Below that, the river splits again at Guide's Island, where the best route is to stay left, down a very pretty and long tunnel of small rapids, before the river comes together again.

In the next stretch the river widens, and if you're in a raft during late July and August, you'll spend a lot of time avoiding boulders. It's not super dangerous, just annoying to get stuck in for a minute.

The end

The run finishes with a flourish. After lots of rock dodging, the river splits again just above John Neal Park. At an island, go right down a fun set of waves, pass by a boat ramp, and then stay pretty far left down John Neil Rapids, the last challenging moment of the trip.

Below, keep an eye out for the Little North Santiam flowing in on the right, and around a bend, you'll see Mehama Bridge and the boat ramp on river left.

The North Santiam from Fishermen's Bend to Mehama is fun, scenic and offers a lot — as long as you have a good boat and understand how to read and run rapids.
