Wedding in Up.
When Schomburg Kerr, the devoted English missionary, was in India, he very much wanted a pony. But that was the need of all the other English who were not old residents. Lord Ripon and his staff had arrived, and the general cry was:
"Where are we to get ponies?"
"Oh, that's easily done," said an Englishman who knew the ropes. "Next Saturday there's to be an auction sale of thirty of the best ponies in India. Then you can ride them and try them."
Schomburg Kerr tried several and eventually fixed a covetous eye on two, Tommy and Bill, which he determined to buy.
Saturday came, and the auction was well attended. In due course of time Tommy was put up, and the missionary bid 200 rupees.
"Two hundred and fifty," said the auctioneer.
"Two hundred and seventy-five!"
"Three hundred!"
These were extravagant prices, but the bidding went on amid great excitement. The missionary reached 500 rupees, which he had resolved should be his limit, and Tommy was knocked down at 525.
"Who is the buyer?" asked Kerr.
"The Marquis of Ripon," said the auctioneer. "His excellency had ordered Tommy to be bought for you at any price."

May a Woman Tell Her Love?
It is true it is unconventional for a woman to tell a man that she loves him unless the man has persuaded her to make such confession, but is there any good reason why a woman should not take the initiative? Is she any less a woman for doing so? A shy and timid man may not know how to tell a woman that he loves her. Should the woman who is of firmer faith and stronger mind stand bawling and waiting for a confession that may never come? Why should she suffer in silence? By so doing may not she lose the man who loves her and also the happiness of a lifetime as well?

Cullom, Editor of the Garland, Texas, News, has written a factures congratulations to the manufacturer of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, as follows: "Sixteen years ago when our first child was a baby he was subject to croupy spells and we would be very uneasy about him. We have five children and have given it to all of them with good results." For Sale by all druggists.
