HOUSE RENT

Is an expense which is reduced only by the landlord. It is certain that all you have for years of rent paying is a bundle of receipts.

WHY DON'T YOU STOP

Paying rent? If you have or can get a little money, you can sell your house. The money you now pay for rent will go a long way toward paying off the balance. You act as your own landlord and pay the money to yourself.

Don't you think you ought to look into such an opportunity?

Nerve Exhaustion and Brain Fog

Osteopathy goes to the root of the trouble. It successfully locates the First Cause of trouble. It passes over mere symptoms to get at the causes that underlie symptoms, and in removing causes, removes also symptoms, which is to say, in such cases cures nervous depletion and brain fog. Of course the osteopath is glad to have the help of favorable conditions as far as possible while treating these patients; but he does not hesitate to undertake their cure right in the midst of the marts of trade or close to the maddening whirl of society, for he possesses a method of "putting the body at rights" when it has been disordered, and he has infinitely greater faith in the efficiency of the science he represents than even in the benefits of a change of climate.

The Osteopathist knows that every man and woman, of whatever station and habits in life, who suffers from neurasthenia, nervous collapse and brain fog, suffers primarily from a "bad back," has some defective conditions there that determine the character of these nervous ailments; and he goes to work on that assumption to locate these conditions by careful manual examination of the spinal tissues. The patient most likely is not aware of such a state of disorder in the anatomy and physiology of his spine. He may never have become aware that he possesses "sore spots" at some of the centers where disturbance is manifest. But there is no argument equal to a demonstration and when osteopathic fingers search out the abnormality and find to be exact and sore and painful upon pressure, the diagnosis is accepted. When treatment has restored normal order to the spine and removed this soreness; when Nature has reasserted herself and with sufficient indulgence has again rebuilt the vitality of the nervous tissue; when nervous exhaustion has been supplanted by efficient, normal nerve strength, and the patient emerges from his distress into full possession of himself again—and this is what the osteopath ordinarily is able to accomplish—his diagnosis is proven to have been correct.

It is because these defective conditions of the spinal tissues bear pressure to bear upon nerves which ought to be free to functionate normally; and, as well, bring pressure to bear upon the little arteries that feed the spinal cord, which must be free of pressure to nourish properly these nervous centers, that disease has first set in. There is local famine in the Nervous System; nervous vitality is depleted and its working power is lowered; then when unusual burdens are added to the already loaded organism—to use the earlier metaphor, "when the candle burns too early and too late, or at both ends at the same time," there is sure to be trouble. There will likely follow nervous exhaustion.

Why one man or one woman develops a state of undermined health which results in nervous collapse while a score of others subject to equal strain do not is because of the Defective Back. The weakest spot breaks down under assault every time. The persons with such conditions along the spine as the osteopathist says are abnormal has not the same fighting chance. His functions are weak because there is defective nutrition in some tissues, and these tissues may play out upon even normal exertion. The nervous tissue is the most active of all bodily tissues; its needs for constant nourishment are imperative; it cannot long withstand the siege of local famine in any part coupled with increase of work. That is how physical disorder becomes the cause of nervous collapse and mental apathy. It is a case of needing more blood at the seat of flagging energies.

The success of Osteopathy to cope with these conditions has become a matter of every day demonstration. You can find out all about these cases if you know persons who know anything about the practice of legitimate Osteopathists. You can go to these practitioners yourself and learn a good deal more—they are able to give you a personal demonstration of what they can do.

If you are suffering from Nervous Exhaustion and Brain Fog, why not take advantage of what Osteopathy offers you?—Osteopathic Health. Dr. Moore, Sommer Bldg. La Grande.
