Osteopathy in Spinal Injuries

The Osteopathic physician, in his treatment of disease, frequently finds cases not understood by physicians of other schools that result entirely from injury—as, for instance, a patient who had injured his head and the neck portion of his spinal column by diving from a springing board into a river, striking his head on the bottom, displacing, in the manner described as a "sub-luxation," the entire set of bones in the neck, causing injury to the whole system. Examination by the Osteopathic method showed not only the derangement of the vertebrae, but also that all parts of the neck were greatly congested, and swollen and tender and that the shoulder had become apparently ankylosed.

Skillful manipulation by an Osteopath of this neck and shoulder and adjacent portion of the body and spine had the effect of reducing the congestion and breaking up the adhesions; and it was done, too, in a very gentle manner, and caused but slight suffering at each treatment, until recovery at length was fully established.

Cases like this prove the contention of the Osteopathic physician, that the vertebrae when injured by violence are always sadly afflicted, and entirely derange the Nervous System, and that the Osteopath by his method of examination and treatment promptly discovers and, in a reasonable time, removes the disease resulting from such injuries, producing radical cures in many cases otherwise incurable by surgery or medicine.—Osteopathic Health.

Putting your foot in the wrong thing generally causes lots of trouble.

How much suffering has been occasioned by putting a foot in the wrong shoe!

Foot was all right; shoe was all wrong.

We do not offer a line of goods that will make it necessary to fit your feet to the shoes.

The kind of shoes we offer are the kind that fit the feet.

Shoes are made to order, feet are not.

Fitting feet with our shoes is a pleasure.

If you want shoes that fit, that feel comfortable, that give good service, that have the style—buy our Green-Wheeler Shoe, for which we are sole agents.
