The birth so greatly wished for, that of an heir to the Russian crown, occurred in the Alexandra villa, one of the group of four small palaces in a seeluded corder of the magneticent Peterhol park. In one of these buildings the empress has been living for weeks-The birth was attended by all the ceremonial ordained by imperial tranition. Incidentally Fath er J hn of Cronscade, a fanious Greek priest who is worshipped by the people and assgreat influence over the emperor, is said to have stated to his majesty, bofore the first daught r was born that the emperor would b ve sevon daughters before he would have a son. This prophecy was firmly believed by the Russian people.

The announcement from Peterbol was immediately followed by a salute of 101 guns from the impetial yacht lying at auchor off the palace, but it was 2:45 p m when the guns of St Peter and St Paul fortresses, opposite the winter palace here, conveyed the glad tiding to the people of the Rus stan captir l.

The effect was electrical. With the boom of the first gun the people in streets, who had been momentarily especting the event for 24 hours, stopped to listen and count the gune. Only 31 are fired for a girl. When the thirty-second boomed and the people were sware that at last an heir to the throne was born there were scenes of rejocing everywhere and be-fore the salute had finish d the whole
