Parker vs Roosevelt

Judge Parker said in his address to the Democratic Editors on Sept. 8th said, "During Mr. Cleveland's first term, the average annual expenditure was about $200,000,000. The government expenditure last year mounted up to $2,000,000,000 which is not equalled by any year since the civil war, with the exception of the year of the Spanish war. There is an inevitable result of said extravagance, instead of a surplus in the annual receipts of about $80,000,000, which the present Executive found on assuming control, there is now a deficit to be found there of $12,000,000."

To the above statement President Roosevelt, in his letter of acceptance of the 13th, says: Our opponents contend that the Government is now administered extravagantly, and that whereas there was a surplus of $80,000,000 in 1900 there is a deficit of more than $40,000,000 in the year that has just closed.

This deficit is imaginary, and is obtained by including in the ordinary current expenses the sum of fifty millions, which was paid for the right of way of the Panama canal out of the accumulated surplus in the Treasury. Comparing the current or ordinary expenditures for the two years, there was a surplus of nearly eighty millions for the year that has just closed. But this diminution of the annual surplus was brought about designedly by the abolition of the war taxes in the intervals between the two dates. The acts of March 2 1901, and April 12 1902, cut down the internal revenue taxes to an amount estimated at one hundred and five millions a year. In other words, the reduction of taxation has been considerably greater than the reduction in the annual surplus. Since the close of the war with Spain there has been no substantial change in the rate of annual expenditures.

The prime reason why the expenditures of the Government have increased of recent years is to be found in the fact that the people, after mature thought, have deemed it wise to have certain new forms of work for the public undertaken by the public. This necessitates such expenditures, for instance, as those for rural free delivery, or for the inspection of meats under the Department of Agriculture, or for irrigation. But these new expenditures are necessary; no one would seriously propose to abandon them; and yet it is idle to declaim against the increase of the Government expense unless it is intended to cut down the very expenditures which cause the increase.

The pensions to the veterans of the Civil War are demanded by every sentiment of regard and gratitude. The rural free delivery is one of the greatest uses and conveniences to the farmers, a body of men who live under conditions which make them ordinarily receive little direct return for what they pay toward the support of the Government. The irrigation policy in the arid and semi-arid regions of the West is one fraught with the most beneficent and far reaching good to the actual settlers, the homemaker; whose encouragement is a traditional feature in America's National policy.

Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, of Oakland, Ca., accompanied by her daughter, Miss Margaret, is here visiting her sister, Mrs. J. H. Leishman.
