

HAIR BRUSHES

In buying hair brushes, and all other brushes, we look out for points that might escape the notice of customers but which have everything to do with the life and service of the brush.

The construction, material, manner in which bristles are fastened, etc., are all important. The brushes you get here are such as you would seek were you a brush expert.

GOMBS

We are as particular in buying combs as we are in selecting brushes. In either line we are able to give you the best possible value for your money.

The hum of industry has drowned the voice of calamity and the voice of despair is no longer heard in the United States, and the orators without occupation here are now looking to the Philippines for comfort. As we opposed them when they were standing against industrial progress at home, we oppose them now as they are standing against national duty in our island possession in the Pacific.—President McKinley.

I am a protectionist because facts confront us, not theories. I have seen the wage-earners of Great Britain and continental Europe; know how they live; that they are homeless and landless as far as ownership is concerned; that they are helpless and hopeless as to any brighter future for themselves or their children; that in their scant wages there is no margin for misfortune or sickness, pauperism being the only refuge.—Hon. William P. Frye.

Luxuries to the European laborer are necessities to the American.—Senator Frye, in the American Economist.

The farmer of the West has learned and the farmer of the South ought to learn that when the factory is closed he not only loses customers for his products, but also meets additional competitors in his production. The workman, losing his employment in the factory, settles upon a truck farm and becomes a producer of the products he formerly bought from the farmer—the prosperity of those who buy his products.—Hon. P. P. Campbell, in Congress, April 1, 1901.
