THE CLAIM OF OSTEOPATHY

Osteopathy believes that if the circulation of the blood to every part of the body is just what it should be, and if the nerve control in every part of the body is correct—you will have health.

It believes that both the circulation of the blood and the nerve control will in all cases, with one exception, be correct unless there is some structural interference with one of the other of them. The solitary exception is when a specific poison has been taken into the body, in which case an antidote is needed.
