Os-te-op-a-ty

Otarrh is one of those diseases which is probably neglected more than any other, and which lays the foundation for a series of diseases. The chronic inflamed membrane excluding its disagreeable secretion, is a weak point, and ready to receive contagion.

Now, otarrh calls for new blood and good blood to absorb and carry away its poison.

It calls for an unobstructed venous circulation that the blood may return to the heart. When this simple but natural condition is accomplished otarrh cannot exist. Like all other diseases the cause must be removed, the point of interference or obstruction remedied. So Osteopathy, whose work is to set everything in harmonious relation has great success in otarrh. Sprays, soothing lotions, and different forms of treatment applied to the nasal and pharyngeal membranes often prove palliative, but do they ever cure?

Antiseptic washes are often indicated, but to cure, the circulatory conditions must be remedied.

Proper breathing is a helpful accessory.
