It is claimed that Judge Eakin has too much to do and is too far behind with his work. But to a frequenter of sessions of the circuit court it is quite evident that the biggest job the judge has is prodding up the attorneys and compelling them to go ahead with their cases. If the bar would be as prompt in advancing their cases as the judge is in hearing them, the much talked of necessity of a division of this judicial district would be unheard of. —Baker City Herald.
