Sick Headache

The distressing ailment results from a disordered condition of the stomach. All that is needed to effect a cure is a dose or two of Chamberlain's Stomach and Live Tablets. In fact, the attack may be warded off, or, if already lessened in severity by taking a dose of these Tablets as soon as the first symptom of an attack appears. Sold by Newlin Drug Co.

Sentence Suspended on the Grand Duke

(Scripps News Association)
St. Petersburg Feb 28—In a letter received today from a group of terrorists, which had previously announced that he was under sentence of death, Grand Duke Vladimir was notified that his sentence was temporarily suspended. It is believed that the intention of the revolutionists is to give the autocrat a "breathing spell," as further assassinations will be likely to force the Czar to drastic measures of repression. Since the assassination of Grand Duke Sergius, Vladimir has been so terrorized that he is almost a complete wreck. Hoping to shield his life, the Grand Duchess, Marie Parlova, insists on accompanying him every time that he ventures abroad.

The Great Revival at Central Church

The revival at the Christian Church will continue several nights yet. To date, 50 people have enlisted under the banner of the Master. Tonight Evangelist Coombs will preach upon "Who are the saved?", a chart sermon.

Interest Continues To Grow

The protracted meeting now in progress at the M. E. Church are meeting with most gratifying success. Each meeting shows an increase in attendance and interest, and many are coming forward each meeting and dedicating themselves to a better life. The Rev. Gillilan is giving his personal direction to the work, and his sermons are listened to with great interest and pleasure. He is a speaker of great power and has that happy facility of imparting to his hearers a large part of the enthusiasm which he himself possesses. He is a speaker of more than ordinary ability and his sermons have the effect of winning souls to the Almighty by love instead of fear. His

NEW HOPE FOR DYSPEPTICS

Digestion depends upon two factors—muscular activity, mixing the food mass with the digestive fluids while moving it on through the alimentary tract and the various digestive ferments found in the fluids of the mouth, stomach and intestines. These ferments are prepared and secreted by glands, big and little. The big glands constitute complete organs, like the pancreas and liver, while the smaller glands exist in the cells of the stomach and intestines.

Unless blood comes to each organ and to each microscopic gland at work within each organ and in proper quantity, secretion is interfered with. It will not be normal in quantity or sufficiently high grade in quality, under such conditions, to do the work of digestion. With any such variation in secretion there will be, in consequence, retarded and imperfect digestion of food, abnormal fermentation, malnutrition, pain and, perhaps, any one or all of the symptoms characterizing dyspepsia in any of its forms.

Last Notice

Months ago I notified the public that all those who had relatives buried in the cemetery, which is a part of my lands were expected to remove the remains without delay. Being aware that this is essentially painful to all concerned, I have been patient but am now compelled to make a final appeal to those interested. The work of clearing the ground has already begun and the lateness of the season necessitates its early completion.

"Stories of Old Oregon" is the title of a new book that has just made its appearance and which has occasioned much favorable comment locally. It is from the pen of Mrs. George A. Waggoner, and comprises well told tales of pioneer days. For the most part, the stories are from real life, polished up some times an occasional dash of poetical fancy. In all, the details are depicted in a clear, incisive style and directness of statement that bring the reader face to face with the situation so vividly that the interest is extreme until the end of the narrative is reached. The style is extremely and pleasantly original and the subject matter occupies a field widely removed from any Oregon literature that has hitherto appeared. The book deserves a place at every Oregon fireside not because it is merely an Oregon product but for the better reason that it is an attractive narrative of incidents of the early Oregon country told in a way not to be found elsewhere.

The publication is meeting with a large sale, over 300 copies having already been sold in Corvallis.—Corvallis Times.

The author referred to in the above review is the father of Mrs. F. L. Lilly of this city and is well known to the pioneers of this valley. His book is certain to meet with a ready sale as he is certainly conversant with the facts of which he speaks.

MRS. CODY ON THE STAND

Scripps News Association
North Platte, Feb. 28—Mrs. Cody took the stand today and denied the charge that she attempted to poison Col. Cody or his dogs, or that she abused the children or ill treated his guests. She admitted using liquor, but stated that she took it only in quantities for medical purposes, and said further that she never used profane or vulgar language. In answer to a question, she said that she still loved Col. Cody, and would welcome a reconciliation and forgive him, if he would retract the poisoning charge.

The property owners along that portion of O street in the vicinity of Dr. Moore's new residence have joined forces for the common good and are grading the Finn hill. This will make one of the finest streets in the city when the improvement is completed.

Itch—Ringworm

E. T. Lucas, Wingo, Ky., writes, April 25th 1902: "For 10 to 12 years I had been afflicted with a malady known as the 'itch.' The itching was most unbearable; I had tried for years to find relief, having tried all remedies I could hear of, besides a number of doctors. I wish to state that one single application of Ballard's Snow Liniment cured me completely and permanently. Since then I have used the liniment on two separate occasions for ring worm and it cured completely. 25c, 50c and $1 bottle. Newlin Drug Co."
