The public is aroused to a knowledge of the curative merits of that great medicinal tonic, Electric Bitters, for sick stomach, liver and kidneys. Mary Mary H. Walters, of 548 St. Clair Ave., Columbus O., writes: "For several months I was given up to die. I had fever and ague, my nerves were wrecked, I could not sleep, and my stomach was so weak, from useless doctors' drugs, that I could not eat. Soon after beginning to take Electric Bitters, I obtained relief, and in short time I was entirely cured." Guaranteed at Newlin's drug store, price 50c.

OSTEOPATHIC HINTS ABOUT CHILDHOOD

Have your child's body examined by an Osteopath as often as the dentist examines his teeth. He may correct small defects at their beginning which later on would lead to serious trouble. Much of the misery of adult life is easily traceable to accidents, like falls which date back to childhood.

You owe no greater duty to childhood, mothers, than to accustom the little ones to regular bowel habits the first thing after breakfast. Neglect here causes untold invalidism.

Bed-wetting is usually a disease, not carelessness merely, and, as a rule, it is easily cured by Osteopaths.

Worms are the result of improper diet and bad digestion, and the liver is apt to be sluggish—probably from eating too much candy. Osteopathic treatment is effective. Even large tapeworms are often removed by our practitioners without any sort of drug-giving whatsoever.

Because your child's eyes are weak is no proof that glasses are needed. We Osteopaths think that about half the children who adopt spectacles do so needlessly—even criminally. In certain structural defects of the eye glasses are necessary—even in the very young; but a large share of eye troubles in childhood is purely functional and much of it reflex, and Osteopathy is able to restore vision perfectly in such cases, whereas adopting glasses would surely make the trouble a life long handicap. The spectacle fitter who finds a fault in vision is not qualified to say what makes it. He notes only the symptom. He is often mistaken in that. See what a competent Osteopath can do for your tots before you fasten the spectacle habit upon them.

Keeping the skin warm with long night garments, both in winter and summer, will spare children many of the ills that plague them. This enables the body to eliminate poisons through the skin which are retained if the surface of the body becomes chilled. Colds, bowel troubles, boils, and such things, can be very much encouraged by exposing the surface of the body over night.

The Osteopath treats all the ills of childhood just the same as the ills common to adulthood, and the ministrations of Osteopathic fingers will do more than anything else to keep a growing family healthy.—Osteopathic Health
