Think Pot

Those people who find this world so wicked, fight the hardest against leaving it.

Some people are so puzzled at the many diverging paths life offers, that they fail to take any.

A rolling stone gathers no moss, but it may become beautifully polished.

A bad temper will lead a man into trouble quicker than bad companionship.

The great heart of humanity, always beats true to the noblest impulses.

The malignity of scandle mongers, is as debasing as the scandle itself.

The evil we do, not only lives after us, but plagues us mightily before we go.

A common error, made by men, is the mistaking of debauchery for pleasure.

It takes only a little time, to transform a "good fellow" into a "poor devil."

That is no charity, when it is so arrogant, that it bestows insult with its beneficence.

Motherhood, is the grandest thing in nature.

WALL STREET NOT A BAROMETER

Last week closed in Wall street with a general slump in stocks. The reasons for the decline were somewhat indefinite, although it is said that the opinion of the banking men for some time has been that prices were above all reason. However that may be, it is certain that business on "the street" has been unsatisfactory for several weeks past and the recent tumble in May wheat did not serve to tone it up any.

It is fortunate, that the time has come when the ups and downs of Wall street do not adversely affect the general business of the country as they once did. Legitimate trade is now on a sound basis and those identified with it do not pay much attention to what speculators may be doing in New York. Domestic business is still large the balance in the foreign trade is still in favor of the United States, and manufacturing generally is substantially active. As a rule, the people who are busy with their own prosperous affairs have not much time to devote to watching the fictitious fluctuations of Wall street.

It is not always so. At one time the movement of the stock market was supposed to reflect in a measure the general conditions of the business world. Nowadays the people do not look to Wall street to ascertain how the country stands financially. A great part of the business is now independent of the stock exchange and will probably so remain. And in view of the development of certain phases of "frenzied finance" it is a good thing that it is so.—Spokesman Review.

The meeting that is called for next Saturday of the property owners of the county to meet in this city to discuss the assessment question is a move in the right direction. It is understood that the assessor will be present and demonstrate the policy that he is pursuing and a free and general discussion will result in a better understanding. There are apparently many erroneous reports in circulation of the values that the assessor is placing on property. To illustrate it was current on the streets here last Saturday that Sandridge land was being assessed at $60 per acre, whereas it is being assessed at about $40

Another report was that apple trees were being assessed at $1 each. A large meeting Saturday will possibly result in a diffusion of knowledge that will remove much of the elements of doubt and uncertainty and may in some instances greatly assist the assessors.

In an address before the National Municipal league the other day, John B. Roberts of Philadelphia declared the remedy for the bribery evil was to punish bribe-giver while permitting the bribe-taker to go free on his turning state's evidence. The idea has many good points, since there could be no bribery were there none to give bribes. It is always difficult to prove that crime. The man willing to be bribed is ready to take the money under conditions that render it impracticable to make proof even if he confesses, but, if it were a provision of law that confession should relieve the bribed from danger of punishment, the bribers would be placed in a far more dangerous position.

Growing Aches and Pains

Mrs. Josie Sumner, Bremond, Texas, writes, April 15, 1902: "I have used Ballard's Snow Liniment in my family for three years. I would not be without it in the house. I have used it on my little girl for growing pains and sores in her knees. It cured her right away. I have also used it for frost bitten feet, with good success. 'It is the best liniment I ever used.'" 25c, 50c, $1. Newlin Drug Co.
