MERRY GATHERING OF ANTLERED TRIBE

Yesterday evening was the great "hobo" gathering of the B. P. O. E., and early in the forenoon the local hobos began to don their "working clothes" and prepare for the fun that followed later in the evening. In the afternoon the local members of the Elks, all in the full dress of hobos, went to the ball grounds where a very interesting and most amusing game of ball was played. To try to describe the game is beyond the power of pen. It had to be seen to be appreciated. It would not be diplomatic to say that some of them were ball players, for the results might be terrific. It is also bad form to say that the umpire was not right in his decisions, but from the kicks that were made at the umpire, many thought that "rotten."

The parade around the streets was amusing in the extreme, and many incidents occurred to bring the hearty laugh and the pleased smile. When the Elgin train arrived it brought in twenty two more hobos, but we are not able to state whether they rode the rods or the blind baggage in order to get here. To say the least of it, their hobo attire was perfect, and it was hard for some of their best friends to recognize them under the paint and disguises. At seven thirty in the evening, a special carrying the Baker City delegation arrived, and then the fun began in dead earnest. The streets were thronged with spectators to witness the antics and the amusing actions of the antlered tribe. And the person who "seldom smiled, and smiled in such a sort as if he mocked himself, and scorned his spirit that could be moved to smile at anything", was provoked to genuine merriment by some of the scenes that occurred. There were about fifty hobos from Baker City and they livened things up while they were here. The B. P. O. E. had a regular meeting at which one candidate was initiated (poor fellow), and after the regular program was carried out, there was a supper fit for the gods set in the hall, and hobos had things that they had only dreamed of before. The entire affair was replete with fun and good feeling, and no discord came to mar the pleasure of the meeting.

A JUDGE FROM EASTERN OREGON

To the Editor of the Observer:—

I believe that it is a fact that Eastern Oregon has not had a judge on the Supreme Bench of the state at any time since the legislature created a separate Supreme Judge, on the republican or the democratic ticket, during that time. From time to time a protest goes up against this condition of things, but it has in the past been brushed aside by those who run the political machine at Portland. Is this to continue indefinitely? I frequently hear that this state of things is not right and that it will be remedied soon. But will it be and when?

At the next election a judge of the Supreme Court will be elected to succeed Judge Wolvorton, and there is a growing number of people who think that Judge Wolvorton has been on the bench long enough. It will hardly be claimed that he possesses any special qualifications for the place. He is a lawyer of fair ability, but that is all. Hence, there is no good reason for continuing him on the Supreme Bench. Many members of the bar are his peers and, not a few, his superiors. As the republicans will be likely to elect the next Supreme Judge, it will rest with them to make a change, if any is made.

Eastern Oregon includes more than two thirds of the area of the whole state and has about 150,000 population. Nearly all the irrigated portion of the state is in this eastern part, and cases are constantly going up to the Supreme Court involving questions growing out of irrigation and use of water. Our Supreme Court as at present constituted has no practical knowledge of these questions; which are so important in this part of the state. All of our Judges reside in the Willamette valley where there is a surplus, and not a scarcity of water and moisture.

I suggest that the people of Eastern Oregon, who feel an interest in this matter begin now the advocates and insist on an Eastern Oregon man to succeed Judge Wolvorton on the Supreme Bench next year. When the matter is really pressed upon the Portland politicians and others it will be allowed, because it is reasonable and commends itself to sensible men. FAIR PLAY
