Smashup In the Yards

A slight wreck occurred in the railroad yards last night on one of the side tracks, a short distance west of the depot, the result being that a box car was broken almost in the middle and one end smashed into kindling wood. It appears that several cars of coal were stationed on one of the side tracks, and the yard crew was trying to make a flying switch with several cars of ties and posts, on the end of which, next to the heavy stationary coal cars, was an old decrepit box car filled with household goods. The cars were coming too fast to stop, and the car of household goods was jammed between the heavy loaded cars of ties and the coal cars. The box car was damaged beyond repair, being torn from the trucks and thrown on one side, only one end remaining on the tracks, which never left the track. It is stated that one of the night yard men was upon the top of the box car at the time the accident occurred and barely escaped injury.

Refreshments were served and a social time followed. — The Cozad Tribune.
