LABOR IN GERMANY

Professor Sombart, in the great university of Breslau, which has a library of 300,000 volumes and stands among the greatest schools of the age, in a recent article published in one of the leading magazines in the east, comparing the condition of laborers in Germany with those in the United States says: "In New York workmen are better and more cheaply housed than in Germany. The average American workman's family lives in five rooms, while the German family has two, and that the American pays a less proportion of his wages for his five rooms than the German pays for his two. The American wages are two or three times higher than the German. Clothing is not much dearer in America than in Germany and shoe ware is cheaper. An American workman's family spends $115 a year for clothing while families of German workmen in Carlsruhe and Nuremberg spend from $32 to $54. The American workmen eat more meat, sugar, fruit, cereals, pies and puddings than the German. But the German workman spends more for alcoholic liquors. The average American family spends $12.40 for alcoholic drinks, while the parallel family in Nuremberg, Germany spends $39 and in Carlsruhe $54. This latter sum is 2 5 per cent of the German's income spent for alcoholic drinks while he spends only 2 6 per cent of his wages for food. The south German workman drinks from six to ten times more beer than the American workman."

When the railroad between the Cove and La Grande is built, it is quite possible that for many years La Grande will receive her supply of wood from the Cove.

President Roosevelt will wish the senate to note his recent report of his receivership in San Domingo. Collections are coming in nicely, thank you; just as nicely as if the senate had taken a hand in the matter itself. The senators who helped to beat the San Domingo treaty will also note that the world did not stop when they said whoa.—Capital News.

The majority of those who attended the fair are more than pleased. The few who are not, are those who imagined that they could save a large portion of their expenses by deferring the purchase of their outfit until reaching Portland where they meet face to face with the fact that they could have saved money by buying at home. They naturally return with a bad taste in their mouth.

MONEY IN THE U S

The Circulation Statement issued by the U S Treasury Department for August 1st 1905, received by the Observer this morning, Aug. 9, gives the general stock of money in the U S on Aug. 1st 1905 at $2,901,791,907 of this $296,859,606 were held in the U S Treasury as assets of the government leaving $2,604,902,301 in circulation among the people, a per capita of $31.29 to each of the 83,259,000 inhabitants estimated to be in the U S. This is the largest per capita of money in circulation since the government began.

There were only two directors of the Commercial Club responded to the call last evening, to arrange for the entertainment of the one hundred Kansas editors who were to stop over here Friday. As a result no arrangements were made and it is presumed they will not stop.
