JAPANESE SOLDIERS THREATEN REVOLT OVER PEACE CONCESSIONS MADE RUSSIA

"Baron Komura Will Die Like a Dog if He Returns" They Say—Gloom Pervades Whole Army

Scripps News Association.
Chicago, Sept. 12.—The News correspondent with the Japanese army, cables that today the terms of peace which have been withheld from the army is gradually becoming known to the officers and men and is being received with universal consternation and indignation. The soldier declares that they would rather continue fighting at any cost than accept such terms of peace. Even high officers do not attempt to conceal their dismay. Nogi has aged perceptibly with disappointment. Kodama, Oyama's chief staff and others of the highest authority are equally disgrusted and according to report none of the commanders were consulted except in a perfunctory way regarding the peace terms.

The feeling is growing in Japan that they have gained nothing from Russia except promises which can only be enforced at the cost of another conflict and many officers declare that in spite of the great victories won, the sum total of the way is a flat failure. The soldiers are pathetic and seem greatly excited by the revolts rising in Japan and frequent threats are heard "Baron Komura will die like a dog if he returns."

Arrangements have already begun for the demobilization of the army. Supplies have stopped coming from the coast and it is expected that complete evacuation by February of next year will be perfected.

Resume Investigations

Scripps News Association.
New York, Sept. 12.—The legislative investigating committee resumed work this morning. Edmund Randolph, treasurer of the New York Life, resumed on the stand and identified the report of the finance committee, bearing on certain sales of stock at the time the Russian government insisted that the company sell its holdings of stock before it could do business in Prussia. Randolph made a warm defense in the action. He said that one sale of Chicago and Northwestern stock made the company over a million and said that as he had been smarting under criticism he wanted to explain. He defended the colored messenger, who was selected to "borrow" money so the company could conform with the requirements of Prussia.

Attorney Hughes for the committee questioned Mr. Randolph very closely regarding the stock sales. During the examination reference was made to non ledger records. Randolph said all insurance companies like banks had non ledger assets. Hughes brought out the fact that the New York Life held five thousand shares of Union Pacific preferred, given as a bonus for syndicate operations as a non ledger account in Dec. 3, 1901. The witness also said that the company never interested themselves in syndicates at a loss.

Massacre Armenians

By Scripps News Association.
St. Petersburg, Sept. 12.—Dispatches from Caucasus indicate that the trouble continues. The Tartars are pillaging the monasteries and murdering the women and children in them. Business is at a standstill and most of the industries are destroyed, especially the silk, naptha, copper and fisheries. The Tartar agents at Batoum have proclaimed a holy war and war has been declared in the districts of Stangezur and Jabral. There the Tartars are massacring the Armenians and the children after mutilation are thrown to the dogs. The few survivors are forced to embrace the Islamism faith.
