In Trance Ten Days

Baker City, Sept. 21—For ten days, lying in a trance like state, with hardly a sign of life, so that her parents almost believed her dead, Elsie Salvatison, a Danish girl, 11 years of age, has at last returned to life. Ten days ago Miss Salvatison was in apparent good health and living with her parents at the Balsley mine, then one day she was taken ill, and gradually relapsed into an unconscious state. She remained in this condition until today, in spite of all the efforts of the doctors to bring her back to life, and hope had almost been given up by her parents and those in charge of her when today she suddenly awakened and spoke. For two days she was cared for at the mine and then was brought to her home in South Baker where she has been under the care of Dr. Marotte ever since. It is due, undoubtedly to his heroic efforts that the girl ever recovered.

Dr. Marotte has had experience with similar cases of this kind and with his past experience he managed to bring Miss Salvatison out of danger. During all the time that she was in the trance she took no food or nourishment of any kind. Today she was given a little food. As is well known, Denmark is a comparative low altitude, while the Balsley mine is elevated about 8,000 feet. The doctor says that the difference in altitude probably produced the strange effect on Miss Salvatison.

Does It Pay---Osteopathic Treatment?

Health is Earning Capacity

Health is an investment. It is gray matter. It is earning capacity. What is it worth? What will you take for yours? No, "not for sale?" But while it is true that health is a priceless treasure, and all would have it, yet many are unwilling to pay the price for it, not only in dollars, but effort, patience, persistence, endurance. The end is difficult in proportion to its desirability. It follows the well known law of "pay the price for that which you would have." Good things all require effort and expense. How much do you wish to be well? How patiently can you endure? How much can you suffer? How long can you wait? The price of success, here, as in other fields, must be paid. Could you, with Thurlow Weed, in order to get an education, study by the night fires of a sugar camp? While losing nine battles out of every ten, could you still press on with an iron determination, and win Blucher's title of "Marshal Forward"?

Would Chitney's question, on being asked his advice about studying law, "Can you eat sawdust without butter?"—turn you from your purpose as a student?

Would you risk a private fortune and ease in old age, with Cyrus W. Field, in laying an Atlantic cable? Could you labor five years with Dr. Judson in India, or seven years with Dr. Morrison of China, in order to convert the first native to Christianity?

Could you labor eight years on the discovery of the circulation of the blood, and then wait twenty five years amid abuse and ridicule for the discovery to be recognized by the profession?

Those succeed who are made of this kind of stuff. Where there is no way they make one. If you are like them you will find health. Osteopathy is the open door to rational recovery from disease.

Results gotten through osteopathic treatments more than justify their expense. Who will not exchange money for earning capacity, whereby the amount spent may be duplicated several times? Who will not give money for the power to acquire education, to be successful, to enjoy life? Rates for treatment are not based upon the time required to administer them, but upon results obtained through them. Neither does the virtue of a treatment consist in its length, but in the kind. It is not how long, but what.

Said a Venetian nobleman to a sculptor: You charge me fifty sequins for a bust that cost you only ten days' labor.

"You forget," said the artist, "that I have been thirty years learning to make that bust in ten days."

Count yourself fortunate if you know of Osteopathy and dwell in a community where you can command this treatment. It restores working capital to the toilers of life.—Osteopathic Health.

Incredible Brutality

It would have been incredible brutality if Ohas. F. Lamborg, of Syracuse, N. Y., had not done the best he could for his suffering son. "My boy," he says, "out a fearful gasb over his eyes, so I applied Bucklen's Arnica Salve, when quickly he cried it and saved his eye." Good for burns and ulcers too. Only 25c at Newlin Drug Co. drug store.
