LA GRANDE PUBLIC SCHOOL

An inspection of our schools from time to time, leads us to repeat a remark made through the city press some time since. Parents could greatly assist the teachers and management of the school by ascertaining the subjects being studied by the child in the several branches, and occasionally propounding to the child, questions adapted to his school work. One of the most serious and alarming features of school work here as well as elsewhere is the remarkable lack of seriousness on the part of the child, regarding his studies and his progress in school. Teachers can and ought to do much but they can not counteract all the influences outside the school that tend to make the child indifferent to achievement, and thoroughness in his work. The parent can greatly assist in this. Let the atmosphere of home be such that the boy or girl will see that there is more in this school work than merely passing away the time. The child in school is a citizen except that he has not the right of franchise, and is subject to the control of parent or guardian. The child in school has a business, at present not productive, it is true, just as truly as any citizen conducts a business. This business of the child is to prosecute his studies at school with that same assiduity and earnestness which is used by the head of a household.

It is evident that a goodly number of children in the upper grades and in the high school are not working to their fullest capacity, and as a result, the general standard of the school is materially retarded. And why are these children not working to their fullest capacity? It is because they are wiser than their parents and managers and teachers, and therefore attend to their school duties differently or indifferently, as they choose. It is because they are spending their spare time in a wasteful manner and not even in beneficial play or sports. They are seen in alarmingly large numbers on the streets long after dark. Thus, they are permitted to counteract the influence and work of the school. We affirm that the mind of a child in the upper grades and high school should be on his school work, and not on the things he expects to do in his play or leisure hours. The school work is the child's chief business. The play is an accessory, necessary it is true to the child's symmetrical development, but the school duties are his chief business every school day of the school year. If the child does not or cannot make school work his chief business and play an accessory, it is the duty of the parent to assist the child in this, by insisting that the child attend to his school business, no matter how distasteful it may be to him. The parent who fails to do this admits that the child is beyond control. We have been astonished within the past few weeks, when asking parents to assist us in breaking up certain cases of truancy, to hear them confess to an inability to control children under fourteen years of age, and that they could not compel the child to attend school if said child chose not to do so. It is certainly a novel condition in which the child dictates to the parent what he will or will not do. School is not an easy place where children go solely for the purpose of pastime and play. It exists for a purpose vastly greater than this. It is a place for work, where the state prepares children for intelligent citizenship, so that in the years to come they may strengthen and preserve the nation. The spirit of discontent that animates the small boy to resist authority and do the things which the state says he must not do, is the same spirit that threw the bombs at Haymarket in Chicago. This system of school could do work vastly more effective, if the parents would see that children intensify effort and attention upon the school duties within certain prescribed hours because doing so, is their chief business. The school, too, should teach the child to work hard. If it fails to do this it fails to teach him one of the best lessons it has for him. Those in school who do work hard furnish daily evidence that the parent rules the child and not the reverse. These are not the children who are rude and loud on the streets, who run about long after dark and who often insult respectable passersby; they are the children of parents who know how to control the child.

The other day we summoned two or three small boys to the office. They brazenly confessed to using obscene, filthy language, and profanity in the hearing of little girls. How are we to account for this alarming condition? It is not entirely the fault of the boys, and certainly the school cannot be held entirely responsible. Somewhere sometime, somehow these boys grew wiser than their parents and showed them that it is proper to do those things which later make them hoodlums, renegades and members of a society. Recently a high school boy when called to the office confessed himself to be addicted to the use of tobacco, and stated that he believed that there were at least one hundred boys in the public schools, who were partially or habitually addicted to the same habit. This is contrary to the regulations of the city school board and in direct opposition to the commonest kind of common sense. And why do parents tolerate this even after the facts are well known? The answer has already been stated. These children have grown wiser than the parents and have taught them a new social system in which the parent is subservient to the child.

"Please Smile AND Look Pleasant."

When a woman says "I am racked with pain," the word "racked" recalls the days when they stretched the tender bodies of women on the rack with rope and pulley until the very joints cracked. Fancy an attendant saying to the tortured woman, "Please smile and look pleasant." And yet the woman "racked with pain," is expected to smile through her agony and to make home happy. She can't do it. It is against Nature. Generally speaking, the racking pains of ill-health such as headache, backache and "bearing-down pains" are related to derangements or disorders of the organs distinctly feminine. When this condition is removed the general health is restored, and with health comes back the smile of happiness.

Any woman may regain her health at home without offensive questionings or examinations by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Sick women may consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free of charge. Such letters are treated as strictly confidential.

It affords me pleasure to relate the wonderful merits of your great medicine, especially your "Favorite Prescription," written by Dr. J. Wesley Rhine, of Woodbury, N. Jersey, P. O. Box 202. "My wife has been using it for some time past, having suffered severely with bearing-down pains,aching in back, and many other complaints peculiar to women. She was very weak, could not do any heavy work or washing but can do all kinds of work now. She is soon to become a mother but we do not fear the result (as heretofore) all due to your wonder-worker, "Favorite Prescription."

"Your 'Pleasant Pills' are also worth many times their price. I have used them for biliousness and stomach trouble, and have found them to be all that you claim. They are my constant companions—once used, always kept."

Given away. The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. The book contains 1000 pages, over 100 illustrations and several colored plates. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the paper-bound book or 31 stamps for the cloth bound. Address Dr. E. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Notice

Beginning with Nov. 1, 1905, the price of milk from Spring Brook Dairy will be two dollars for a quart a day instead of one and one-half as heretofore. This change is made necessary on account of the great expense we are put to in caring for and handling the milk. It is our aim as it has been from the beginning to furnish our customers with a good, pure wholesome milk and we propose to spare no pains or expense in doing so. Therefore the change.

Thanking our customers for their past patronage and appreciation of our milk and hoping that they will continue with us. We are ever yours,

Cheated Death.

Kidney trouble often ends fatally, but by choosing the right medicine E. H. Wolfe, of Bear Grove, Iowa, cheated death. He says: "Two years ago I had kidney trouble, which caused me great pain, suffering an anxiety, but I took Electric Titter which effected a complete cure. I have also found them of great benefit in general debility and nerve trouble, and keep them constantly on hand, as I find they have no equal. Wolfe's druggist, guarantees them 50c."

Makes digestion and assimilation perfect. Makes new red blood and bone. That's what Hollister's Mountain Tea will do. The stock and weak. 50c. Tablets. Newlin Drug Co.
