Fred Sachs, also a railroad man, remained in the house with Mrs. McCue. Neely returned after a short time and shot Mrs. McCue in the neck and Sachs in the back, and then shot and killed himself. Neither Sachs nor the woman are badly wounded. McCue returned from his run this morning but refuses to talk. Sachs says that the shooting was the result of jealousy on the part of Neely, owing to the fact that he was acquainted with Mrs. McCue before she married her husband. Neely left a note saying that he hoped that Sachs would die but that the woman would get well, and that he did it for his friend, Mr. McCue.

ROBBERS FAIL TO ESCAPE

Scripps News Association
Riverton Ky Nov. 1.—The bank robbers who for years have been terrorizing the Ohio valley cities by blowing up many safes and stealing thousands of dollars, came to grief after an exciting finish, after raiding the bank at Willard, in Carter county yesterday afternoon. Four are in jail, two of the bandits are unhurt and one is mortally wounded, being riddled with bullets and one is slightly wounded. Two are fleeing for their lives pursued by a posse and bloodhounds.

They entered Willard yesterday and looted on the outskirts a local motive under steam, in charge of a watchman whom they bound and gagged and then went up town and entered the bank and blew the safe to smithereens, which attracted the citizens, who hastily gathered and kept up a running fight. The desperadoes escaped to the engine which they left in full speed. The dogs took the trail where they left the engine and located robbers resting in a field and the battle was on. There were too many for the heretofore successful pirates, and only two escaped.
