Union La Grande

A foot ball game will be played here next Saturday between the high school teams of Union and La Grande and it will be the last of the season. Seven weeks ago the La Grande boys went to Union and were defeated by a score of 2 to 0. Since that time both teams have been greatly strengthened by the addition of new players and by hard training. The teams are certainly of very even strength and ability. This will make a close game and one well worth watching, but if the home rosters turn out well, the odds will be in La Grande's favor. Both teams play fast ball and clean ball. At the game played in Union there was none of what is called "chewing the rag" and there will be none in Saturday's game. Anyone who is prejudiced against foot ball should see this game and reform his opinions by first hand knowledge. To the lover of the game, it will be a genuine treat. Colors are blue and white.

PARALYSIS CURED— ITS LESSON

C. H. Gillman, M. D., a physician of the old school was driving near his home, Oakley, Kan., when his horse became unmanageable, upsetting the carriage down an embankment. The physician was thrown about thirty feet and found himself unable to rise after regaining consciousness. All sense of feeling was gone below the waist, nor could he move either leg. He called the best physicians and surgeons of his own school into consultation. They said nothing could be done for him. He was paralyzed for life, they assured him, and further said he could live only a few days, or weeks, at best. Dr. Gillman did not accept the death sentence very gracefully. He did not even believe he would always be paralyzed. Following an old custom in medicine, he sought help by a change of climate and with no definite purpose went to Excelsior Springs, Missouri. He was ready to make any experiment with the hope of benefit since he had nothing to lose. Somebody persuaded him to call in an Osteopath. He did so, notwithstanding his misgivings that Osteopathy was "a gigantic modern folly."

Examination of Dr. Gillman's spine—which the medical "consultants" probably had entirely overlooked in the favor of their discussions—revealed that he had sustained a partial dislocation of vertebral bones low down on his spinal column. Two or three osteopathic treatments made him feel less sore and tense at the injured spot. Additional treatments restored the vertebrae to their normal position, bringing back feeling to the lower portion of the body, and then the control of both legs within sixty days or so. Dr. Gillman—whom his own colleagues had condemned to die—was well! Absolutely restored.

He wrote a letter to the local newspaper, recounting his experience with Osteopathy, before setting out for home, stating that he wished "to give honor where honor was due." He declared as an M. D. that an Osteopathic physician had restored him to life and usefulness after his own system of practice had been powerless to aid him.

What is the lesson in this case? Just this, that instead of dignified conferences between doctors—which begin and end usually with expressing the preconceived ideas of theorists about obscure symptoms—it is much better for physicians to go straight to the body of the sick man or woman, as the Osteopath invariably does, and see if the mechanical cause of the disturbance can be located. If found, it will be possible, in the great majority of cases, to correct it. To this habit of osteopathic diagnosis Dr. Gillman owes his life, as indeed does many another man and woman whom the new school of practice has snatched from the jaws of death or, what is worse than death, permanent, helpless invalidism.—Health.

Cleared For Action

When the body is cleared and ready for action, by Dr. King's New Life Pills, you can tell it by the bloom of health on the cheeks; the brightness of the eyes; the firmness of the flesh and muscles; the buoyancy of the mind. Try them, at Newlin Drug Store, 25 cents.
