BURTON CONVICTED

Senator Burton has been convicted again. The jury found him guilty on every count of the indictment. Moreover, the evidence in the case clearly justified the verdict, being far more direct and conclusive than on the first trial. The defendant went on the stand and admitted his offense, relying upon a technicality to protect him from punishment. That technicality will have to be passed upon by the higher court, but the evidence of the defendant himself and others was so clear that his guilt was plainly established. He may escape on the plea that he entered into the illegal agreement in another jurisdiction, but he is morally guilty as found by the jury.

Perhaps Burton is not satisfied, but he can rest assured that everybody else in the country is. But, though he has been convicted the second trial being far stronger than on the first, he will fight on, and in the meantime will hold his seat in the senate. The latter fact suggests that the senate itself should take some means of getting rid of him. It is a disgrace to that body to have convicted criminals sitting with it, and it should be able to find a way to induce such a one as Burton to resign. To be sure, Burton will not actually sit, but he will hold the seat; he will draw his salary, and he will continue to be the senator from Kansas.

Senators or representatives of the United States must actually make the journey to Washington to receive the mileage to which they are entitled. In the case of the Oregon men this mileage totals $1,250. Senator Mitchell and Representatives Williamson and Herrmann must actually make the trip during the fifty-ninth session or lose this money.

UP HILL WORK

Maurice O. Eldridge, assistant director in the board of U. S. public road inquiries, in an article published by the department of agriculture, Bulletin No. 135, on earth roads, presents some figures on the cost of moving farm produce over country roads, which the Observer reproduces.

These figures are given, because it is believed that they are of much greater value to the people of Union county than expensive dispatches about distant peoples.

Mr Eldridge writes: "Accurate tests have shown that a horse which can pull on a level road 1,000 pounds, on a rise of—

1 foot in 100 feet can draw only	900
1 foot in 50 feet can draw only	810
1 foot in 44 feet can draw only	750
1 foot in 40 feet can draw only	720
1 foot in 30 feet can draw only	640
1 foot in 25 feet can draw only	540
1 foot in 24 feet can draw only	530
1 foot in 20 feet can draw only	490
1 foot in 10 feet can draw only	250

It will therefore be observed that when the grades are 1 foot in 44 feet a horse can draw only three-fourths as much as he can on a level. Where the grade is 1 foot in 24 he can draw one-half as much as on a level road. The difficulty as well as the cost of hauling is therefore necessarily increased in proportion to the roughness of the surface or steepness of the grade."

It is hard to tell which is the most destructive of human life, automobile or football.

As far as Eastern Oregon is concerned there is no doubt but what sentiment is daily growing in favor of Mayor Johns of Baker City for governor and ex-Congressman Ellis to be returned to congress.

Now is the time to commence the winter right. Clean off your side walk after every snow storm. Some cities have ordinances to compel such action on the part of property owners.

If there is anything that pleases the farmer it is to receive good prices for his products. Such a condition of the market has existed this year and of course the Union county farmers are happy. They have realized top prices for grain and almost everything else.
