An Important Verdict

Colonel Ivanhoe today received word from his client, at Ellensburg, Washington, that the jury returned a verdict for him about 12 o'clock, Saturday night, against the insurance company, for his loss by fire, sustained a year and a half ago. In speaking of the case the Colonel says that in all his experience as an attorney, he never participated in the trial of a case involving more close questions, more persistently fought from beginning to close. His client is a former resident of Enterprise, Mr. A. E. Flower, an old soldier, an acquaintance of twenty years standing. Attorney Ivanhoe says the result is some compensation for an enforced absence from his office for over two weeks at a busy time, and adds that he never met, and never expects to meet more courteous gentlemen than he met professionally on this trip, including, as it did, the judge on the bench, all of the Ellensburg, and several of the North Yakima and the Seattle bar.
