AMUSEMENTS

"Ghosts" as played by Harry Mestay er and company, is a 'thought" provoking drama, and one that appeals to its audience in a more serious frame of mind Y " S C E meeting than is usual. But the play is an unusual one. While we have had Ibsen's drama presented to us, it is the first time that it has been done by this talented young Morning-"Practical Infide ity" Evening-"The More islemed Life" artist who seems to have been born for the part. Ibsen's drama is not merely a story of a brilliant young artist destruc-WANTED-A young man can secure tion through heredity of the afflictions or employment in store in La Grande on a mother's vain sacrifice. It is more behind the tragedy of Oswald Alving is the tragedy of Oswald's father, the joy loving counterpart of Oswald, who was doomed to the dull routine of society in a small town. The undertone of Ibsen's "Ghosts" is the suppression of nature and truth under the load of dogmas and old LOST - a pair of gold eye glasses with saws generally, the believing in one life plain bows, was lost somewhere be- and living another. A great many people tween Ed Reynolds' place and the post- will leave the theatre saying that "Ghosts" is horrible-yes, it is even immoral; but at the same time it gives us the truth. and truth is sometimes horrible, but in this Janus-headed world of ours, Ibsen's story is the clarion call of the twentieth century. Tear off the mask. "Ghosts" will be presented, under the management house, Friday, Dec. 15.

> A remarkable program is furnished by these diminutive, but talented little ladies the Misses Adams, consisting of recital, song, cantata and tableaux. The numbers are so varied in character and so artistically presented that there is not a dull moment from the begining to the end. The children are delighted; everybody is instructed and amused.

Aside from the literary and artistic merit of the entertainment, the modest and charming personality of the Adams Sisters makes them favorites wherever they go. The two little ladies, only 46 and 49 inches in height respectively, about the size of the average boy and girl of four or five years of age but endowed by all the grace that comes with mature store. Fell from a hack. Call at J. years and with the culture that is acquired by training, is in itself a sight worth the price of admission.
