Governor Chamberlain Addresses High School Today

with honor and honesty? It has been said that the high walks of life are filled to overflowing with men and women. This is not true. There are created constantly demands for good citizens. Upon the public school the burden of creating these citizens rests.

"The highest type of American citizenship is exemplified in our great president, Theodore Roosevelt. He is the greatest living American and I rank him next to Lincoln as being the greatest president this country ever had. His great popularity is largely due to his independence and action. While Mr. Roosevelt and I do not agree in political lines on all subjects my admiration for him is the greatest."

"There is Joseph W. Folk of Missouri, although elected by the great political machine of his state, has thrown aside the conventionalities of political life and has made a campaign to land the violators of the laws of the land, behind the bars. Then there is Governor La Follette of Wisconsin who has also thrown aside the ties and placed himself in a position where he can do the most good. These are the highest type of citizenship and to these ends the young people of this nation should aspire."

Immediately following his address to the school the Governor went to the court house to begin the morning session of the law case under consideration.

In speaking of the land frauds perpetrated by the McKinley-Puter gang the Governor said:

"The punishment of the offenders rests entirely in the hands of those who were swindled. The state is offering all assistance possible in its power to bring these people to justice. These buyers are arriving from the east and are preparing to take action in the matter. It is safe to say that the intending purchasers of land hereafter will exercise more caution and as a result the state will not be blotted with frauds of a like character in the future."

About Oregon's new senator he said:

"Before appointing a successor to the late Senator Mitchell I inquired into the policy of John M. Gaaren. I found that he was loyal, though not what would be classed an active Democrat politician, and ascertained that he was as hearty in accord with President Roosevelt on the regulation question as I am myself. I can safely say that we may expect splendid treatment from the hands of the new senator as I am sure he will devote every effort to the betterment of Oregon."

BLAZING BARGE SIGHTED

(Scripps News Association) Atlantic City, Dec. 21.—A large steamer is afire off this port. It is supposed to be the Pennsylvania which sailed from New York yesterday. The vessel is about five miles off the shore and is burning up. The people can be seen running about the deck. Two life saving crews have been dispatched.

The life savers returned and report the craft to be a barge in ballast. The tug saved the crew before the life savers arrived.

WILL NEVER AGAIN ENTER PRIZE RING

Fitz has Fought Last Fight— Forced into Ring by Public, Taken out by Friends

(Scripps News Association) San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 21.—In the fight here last night O'Brien defeated Fitzsimmons in the 15th round.

Sick and dispirited, more from mental than physical illness, Bob Fitzsimmons declared no amount could tempt him to enter the prize ring again. "I was defeated and defeated fairly and squarely by a better man," is Bob's declaration. "This fight was forced upon me by the public by the retirement of Jaffries, recognizing me as entitled to the honor of the championship. I entered the ring once too often." Fitz will fill his theater engagement in this city on New Year's day and will then leave for New York where he is to appear in the stage work O'Brien is unsettled as to his plans. He states that he is willing to defend his title of the heavy weight championship, which he considers he earned last night. He has several tempting offers for theatrical engagements in this city. "I would like first to fight Tommy Ryan and after disposing of him will fight Marvin Hart," said O'Brien.

WILL MEET O'BRIEN Minneapolis, Dec. 21.—Tommy Ryan, who is playing here at a local theatre, says he is willing to meet O'Brien any time.

(Scripps News Association) Washington, D. C., Dec. 21.—The President has decided not to exercise his legal right, and refuse the senate its request to be allowed to reconsider the bill confirming the canal commission, and will return the bill for reconsideration. Under the three day rule the senate had lost its right to consider.

There will be a dance this evening in the L. D. S. meeting house.

MANY HEART DISEASES CURABLE

SIMPLE AND RATIONAL METHODS RESORTED TO BY OSTEOPATHY—RELIEF ASSURED, WITH CURE IN A LARGE PERCENTAGE OF CASES

Has it ever occurred to you that the shape and size of the chest cavity, in which the heart and lungs perform their labors, depends chiefly upon the position of the ribs? And that depression of the ribs will decrease the space in which these all-important organs work, besides seriously crowding their nerve connections.

This condition of rib displacement is one of those most frequently found by the Osteopath in examining patients afflicted with heart trouble; and, the fact that he can, by simple mechanical means, restore the ribs to their proper places largely accounts for his success in dealing with cases of this kind. The number of those who believe themselves suffering from organic heart trouble, whereas this great pumping center of the body is really only protesting because its quarters are too contracted, is very great indeed; and it is a very common thing for every symptom of supposed heart trouble to disappear entirely after Osteopathic treatment has restored the chest cavity to its normal shape and given Nature room in which to work.

OTHER LESIONS WHICH ARE FOUND

Rib misadjustments are not the only ones, however, which are located and corrected by the Osteopath in his efforts to relieve the heart. Displacements of the collar bone, or of certain of the spinal vertebrae, cause heart trouble also by interfering with the nerve connections of the organ or by disturbing the action of vaso-motor nerves, which control blood circulation. The Osteopath's knowledge relative to these points is not theoretical, its accuracy having been demonstrated in countless cases; and his training and practice enable him to detect at once any abnormal adjustments which are adversely affecting the complicated nervous connections of the heart. So that his success in treating diseases of this organ, and of the whole circulatory system—simply by removing unnatural pressure from nerves, vessels, and the heart itself—is not difficult to account for.

AS TO CHANCES OF CURE

The number of different diseases of the heart is too large, the variety of special conditions too great, to permit of detailed discussion here; and no opinion of value can be rendered as to the prospect of cure in a given case except by the Osteopath after he has made a careful examination of the anatomical condition of the individual. It may be stated in a general way, however, that, although numerous of heart trouble are admittedly incurable and nothing more than relief and the prolongation of life can be promised by the best of Osteopaths, there is another large variety of cases in which cure is practically assured; and that very often what have seemed to be incurable heart affections turn out under Osteopathic diagnosis and treatment to be nothing of the sort.

It is decidedly worth while for any one suffering from any irregularity of the heart to consult an Osteopath; for the possibilities of good resulting are great, and the probabilities distinctly better than under any other form of treatment.—The Right Way.
