Doctors declared her end so near that her family had watched by her bed-side forty-eight hours; when, at my urgent request Dr. King's New Discovery was given her, and with the astonishing result that improvement began, and continued until she finally completely recovered, and is a healthy woman today." 60c and $1.00 at NEWLIN DRUG CO. ## WHAT THE E. O. EXPERIMENT STATION IS DOING

While Somewhat Curtailed, Much Work of a Valuable Character is Being Accomplished.

Owing to the fact that the appropriation for the Eastern Oregon Experiment station, at our last legislature, fell into the hands of the Referendum; and the passing of the Carter bill which came into effect May 19, 1905, providing that hereafter all moneys received from the income of rents of state property and from the sale or disposition of surplus products of all state institutions, must be deposited in the state treasury, the Eastern Oregon Experiment Station was placed in a very critical condition financially. And all that prevented it from closing its doors, similar to that of our various normal schools, was the business manner in which the Board of Regents financed the station from the start. Realizing that the station was dependent upon the state for maintenance, and fearing that such conditions which now exist, might come to pass; they wisely deposited in the First National Bank, all moneys received from the sale of surplus products and rents of various portions of the station, not used for experimental purposes. The Station has been drawing on this bank deposit since October 1904, at which time the last available appropriation was exhausted. The remaining deposit was not sufficient to continue the work as usual at the Station, so it was decided to discontinue experiments with stock feeding and breeding, rent all farming land, and throw the entire effort toward experiments with grains, grasses and forage crops. For conducting these experiments 120 acres were reserved.

While the station is yet young, the work done has been highly satisfactory. Many new grasses have been introduced with marked success. Among those most prominent are Oregon Bromus, Oregon Evergreen, Reed Fescue and Festuca Hybrid. In the experimental plot of grasses there are 68 varieties; since these are grown side by side under the same conditions, the various characteristics and manners of growth developed in the different individuals make an intensely interesting comparison. Experiments with Australian Salt Aush and Bermuda-grass were very successful last season, and much hope is entertained that they will prove to be of great value for our poorest alkali soils.

Recognizing the importance of range conditions, the Station will endeavor to take up co-operative experiments in various sections of Eastern Oregon with grasses suitable for this purpose.

Believing the sugar beet industry to be of great importance in this section, much attention is given to this line of work, and the results already obtained are exceedingly encouraging. The Station has demonstrated without question, that high-grade sugar beet seed can be produced at home conditions being very favorable here for this industry.

Extensive experiments in potato culture are being carried on; arrangements have been made for a test of 45 varieties the coming season. Much interesting work has been done regarding the size and treatment of the seed potato.

Keeping in mind the all important grain industry, the Station has at present 62 fall varieties growing in plots of equal size. In order to make a practical variety test, each sample was sown in rows six inches apart, at the rate of a bushel and a peck per acre. Each plot will be harvested and weighed separately; interesting and important results are expected. Many varieties of spring grain will also be tested in a like manner. A variety of Macaroni wheat introduced from North Dakota last year did remarkably well, but like many of our most promising wheats, it is bearded; realizing that this is a serious objection, the Station has endeavored, through selection and careful work, to produce these varieties without beards. The results so far have been more than were expected, for in many varieties the beards have been decidedly diminished, and in a few, entirely eliminated.

A Mother Testifies

This is to certify that my daughter was down for almost one year with a cold. The doctors finally pronounced it consumption. We had given up hope for her recovery. I was given a sample bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar. I gave it all to her in about three hours. It stopped the cough, and gave her rest. I sent next day and bought a 50c. bottle and began giving it. In three month's time she was well. There can not be too much said in favor of Foley's Honey and Tar. It saved my child's life.
