A MODERN MIRACLE

"Truly miraculous seemed the recovery of Mrs. Mollie Holt of this place," writes J. O. R. Hooper, Woodford, Tenn., "she was so wasted by coughing up pus from her lungs. Doctors declared her end so near that her family had watched by her bed-side forty-eight hours; when, at my urgent request Dr. King's New Discovery was given her, and with the astonishing result that improvement began, and continued until she finally completely recovered, and is a healthy woman today." 50c and $1.00 at NEWLIN DRUG CO. HINTS TO FRUIT GROWERS OF GRANDE RONDE VALLEY

Please paste this in your hats:

If you are a fruitgrower, just think of the following facts: That the leaders, pushers and fighters who keep up with the advance of progress in any business, walk or undertake in life, are universally the successful ones. These are the ones who drive their business, and don't let their business drive them.

Now if the English language contained a word, the following of which would bring success, that word would be sought after like the spring of perpetual youth. Yet there is a word without which there can be no success to the average fruitgrower, and that word is co-operation. It has come to be an axiom, that fruitgrowers must co-operate in order to be successful. Now co-operation means to act or operate jointly with one another. That is, all shall work, and not leave all the work to a few who may be so unfortunate as to be styled "officers."

To bring the matter home where we live, our greatest success will be when all of the Grande Ronde Valley fruitgrowers shall take the same care of their orchards; shall spray, pick and pack the same; shall advertise the same; sell the same, and

ADJUSTING THE HUMAN MACHINE

Observing a Corliss engine of five hundred horsepower, with its immense wheel in motion, its brightly polished cylinder showing care and attention, the regular action of the piston rod transmitting power, the eccentric working in perfect rhythm, opening one chamber in the cylinder as it closes another—with what feelings of awe one is inspired. How we respect the genius of one who perfects such a mechanism!

Suddenly the monster develops a disorder; the eccentric does not seem to do its work; the various parts act in a jerking manner; the machine shakes the whole building each time the wheel revolves; something must be done quickly to save the machine from ruin.

SIMPLY ADJUSTMENT—THAT'S ALL

What is wrong? On investigating it is discovered perhaps that a set screw has through straining, become loose; or one of the braces has bent; as a result the whole machine is jeopardized. Unless this is adjusted, will any amount of oil do the work? Impossible! Will the use of some other kind of coal be a remedy? Indeed not! Will the use of filtered water adjust things? No! We must quit theorizing and take off our coats and go to work; tighten the screws; strengthen the bent rods. Adjustment is necessary—is required.

In what does that machine resemble man, the most wonderful of all machines. In whose body are found all the mechanical principles so beautifully exhibited? In many ways the two are identical. Why so? The Osteopath demonstrates it every day. Some may sneer and try to make light of it; but that does not alter the fact one iota; ridicule is not an argument; it is the weapon of ignorance.

HEART IRREGULARITIES REMOVED

Here is a case of heart irregularity. The organ misses a beat every minute or two; that beautiful double system of nervous control, namely, the stimulating, or propelling power, the sympathetic, and the inhibitory nerve, or those strands of the pneumogastric acting as a brake, are not in unison—just as we have seen in the case of the machine.

What does the Osteopath discover? "Bad hygienic surroundings?" No. In most cases he finds a misplaced rib or several of them, due perhaps to a fall, a blow, or violence of some description. We do not even hesitate to claim that simply turning over in bed might upon occasion throw a rib out of its true position and adjustments. A rib may be strained as well as a wrist or shoulder. Who will prove otherwise?

Feeling sure, then, that a rib in a false position is possible, we can readily measure what effects follow at its articulation or junction, with its vertebra. It is possible for the posterior spinal branches of one's nerves to become involved; then the "rami-communicantes," the communicating branches with the sympathetic system; and, following out these lines, we come to the great sympathetic and cerebro-spinal systems with their two opposing forces, propelling and restraining, in perfect control of the heart.

DON'T BLAME THE CLIMATE

Such is the case as Osteopathy looks at it, and the Osteopathist cures various forms of heart disease by following this line of thought, and by suitable treatment; he advises no change of climate, likely, in such ailments, and no system of diet; does not advise getting married or remaining single. These are the things often prescribed by our brethren of other schools when they are at their wit's end for a plausible diagnosis, and who say buy and hire the same. Then we will find the net results of our achievement to be that we buy for less and sell for more, which are the main things desired. But added to the above, is the fact that by being united in the same cause, we become better neighbors, less selfish, more generous, more pleasing to ourselves, to our neighbors and to our God.

Therefore if your community is not organized, better be at work, as the Sunday School song says: "you in your little corner and me in mine." Then we can unite our "little corners," in the whole valley, then with the state and finally with the northwest fruit section, which is the best in the world. Then get in the flood-tide of the fruit industry, don't soul in the ebb. Be workers. Don't kick, hinder or hold back. Don't wear breeching, but get into the collar.

If you are not a member of an organization, ask yourself, why, and remember, that the objects the organizations are working for, are the very things most desired by you. If your officers don't please all, just remember that one, Jesus Christ, failed to please all.

forsooth, that "Osteopathy is dangerous!" The Osteopathist knows that all these recommendations are made simply to disguise ignorance as to the mechanical cause underlying disease.—Osteopathic Health.
