White House Wedding Occurs

million dollars. A large room was set apart on the second floor of the White House for the reception of the presents, and this was filled to overflowing. The Roosevelts have many wealthy connections, and the Longworths are allied to families of large fortune in the Middle West. Magnificent gifts were sent by the Cornelius Vanderbilts, the John Jacob Astors, the Millers, the Goetzels and Bondens. It is said that at Tiffany's alone more than $100,000 worth of jewelry and bric-a-brac was ordered for the wedding.

STORY OF THE COURTSHIP

This, in brief, is the happy culmination of a romance that has kept society astir at the national capital for the last two years. The love story began really a year or so earlier, soon after Mr. Longworth was elected to congress, and shortly succeeding Miss Roosevelt's "coming out." But it was not until the young representative had become a frequent visitor at the White House and was often seen in Miss Alice's company that their friends began to read a courtship in their association.

It is asserted that Miss Roosevelt said "No" to his wooing at least a dozen times. He only smiled and said that he would ask her again. She received many attentions from other eligible young men. Still he smiled and said it did not worry him the least. She told him at the theatre one night, in the presence of a box party, that she "hated bald-headed men." He grinned good-naturedly, and remarked that his future wife would be unable to pull his locks. At all rebuffs and discouragements he merely smiled, and refused to be cast down. It is said that he finally gained her consent to his suit while they were visiting the Imperial Palace at Peking. As they entered the portal of the Emperor's home he asked for the thirteenth time, "Will you be my wife?" and she replied, "I'll give you an answer before we leave this building." What she said after that is not recorded, but during the remainder of the tour, it was noticed that Mr. Longworth's smile was even more genial, more confident, and more frequent than before, and he was, if anything, more devoted in his gallantries.

The engagement was formally announced by President and Mrs. Roosevelt on December 12th last, from which time Miss Alice, when not being feted by her numerous friends, was almost constantly occupied in arranging for her trousseau and the minor details of the wedding. Many of the invitations were addressed in her own hand.

Her gowns are all of American fashioning, most of them having been made by a celebrated New York modiste. The wedding garment is of rich brocaded satin, woven from an exclusive pattern in a Paterson (N. J.) mill. It is cut princess style, as are nearly all the dresses worn by the President's daughter, with a neck and yoke of point lace, elbow sleeves and court train. Several of her reception and ball gowns are of materials given her by the Dowager Empress of China and other distinguished personages whom she met on her tour of the Orient. There are beautiful Chinese, Japanese, and Indian silks and the delicate pina of the Philippines. Miss Roosevelt is said to have had no less than a dozen gowns made. There were several cloth dresses, in addition to those made of Oriental stuffs, a yellow satin evening gown, a pink satin dinner gown, a yellow chiffon tea gown made over satin, and a cloak for the opera. One of the special designs woven at the Paterson looms reproduces the Roosevelt crest in the silk and makes a novel and attractive effect.

The bridegroom of today was born in Cincinnati on November 5, 1869. The honored name and the family fortune were there when he arrived.

He has done nothing to dim that fame, nor has he made any effort to dissipate his fortune. His career has been an agreeable one. He found the way to prestige already paved for him. Wealth, social standing, and political preferment have been his without the asking. He attended the Cincinnati public schools, then went to Harvard, graduating with the A. B. degree in 1891. In college he was more distinguished as a musician than as a student, although proficient in a general way. He belonged to a glee club in his junior year, and with it made a tour of the United States, his talent as a violinist bringing him encomiums everywhere. Music is yet his passion, and perhaps the most prized of his possessions, save only the fair woman whom he made his bride today, is a genuine Stradivarius, which he discovered in Cincinnati and on which he extemporizes in a manner that marks the born musician.

He spent one year in the Harvard Law School, then finished his legal training in the Cincinnati Law School, being admitted to the Ohio bar in 1894. As a counsellor he succeeded indifferently, and in 1898 he entered politics. Admission was not difficult for him. George B. Cox, who ruled the destinies of the Republican party in Hamilton county gave him a friendly lift and helped him into the school board.

A year later he was elected to represent the county in the House of Representatives of the State; two years later he was sent to the Ohio Senate. He acquitted himself with credit, two important laws touching on the government of municipalities bearing his name, and he was again promoted, this time to membership in the 58th Congress of the United States, as Representative of the First Ohio District. He did little in that session, as new comers usually do. He sat in the background and studied the ropes, making only one speech in the two years, and that on the proposition of providing the embassies and legations of the United States with homes at government expense. He was renominated and re-elected, and is now serving his second term.

It was his election to Congress that the door opened to the one love affair of Nicholas Longworth's life. Before taking his seat he paid a visit to Washington, principally to get his bearings and learn his future duties. President Roosevelt, whose acquaintance he had previously made, invited him to dine at the White House. It was at this dinner that he first saw Miss Alice.

Mr. Longworth is a man of healthy tastes and worldly knowledge. He has seen much of social life, has traveled extensively, is popular as a clubman, and has a wide circle of friends and acquaintances among the best people of the land. He is athletic, a devotee of golf as well as some of the more lively sports, such as baseball and horseback riding. The Longworth estate is valued at several million dollars. Parts of it have already been divided among the children, and Nicholas Longworth has received a generous share. Some day he will be master of a large fortune in his own right.

SKETCH OF THE BRIDE

She is the daughter of President Roosevelt's first wife, Alice Lee, of Boston, and bears her mother's name. Two days after her birth, Feb. 11, 1884, her mother died, and Theodore Roosevelt, heartbroken and desperate, fled to the Western plains to forget his grief. The wee baby was left in care of her aunt, now Mrs. William S. Cowles, and the affection which grew between them has strengthened with the years.

When Alice was three years old Theodore Roosevelt married Miss Edith Kermit Carow, who very soon learned to love as her own child the motherless little one. The tender sympathy existing between Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Cowles has a natural explanation, therefore, for both have the same deep affection for the girl who became a bride today. Miss Alice's girlhood was spent in New York and Boston, and was not unlike the school girl and academic years of the ordinary child of wealth.

Miss Alice was "brought out" on January 1, 1902. On February 5th of the same year, by special invitation from the Emperor of Germany, she christened the royal yacht "Meteor." Since then her career has been one succession of social triumphs. Fashions have been made and unmade by her fancies in dress; emperors and kings have sued for her favors, and today the civilized world bows before the orange blossoms and the white veil she has taken in the name of Longworth.

ORINO Laxative Fruit Syrup

Pleasant to take and does not gripe or nauseate

Cures Chronic Constipation, Stomach and Liver Trouble

Stimulation Without Irritation.

ORINO Laxative Fruit Syrup is a new laxative syrup combined with the delicious flavor of fruits, and is very pleasant to take. It will not gripe or sicken. It is much more pleasant and effective than Pills, Tablets and Saline Waters, as it does not derange the Stomach, or irritate the Kidneys, Liver or Bowels.

Constipation.

ORINO Laxative Fruit Syrup will positively cure chronic constipation as it restores the natural action of the intestinal tract. Ordinary cathartics may give temporary relief but the stomach is upset and the bowels are irritated without any permanent benefit having been derived.

The condition of the patient remains unchanged. The Stomach, Liver and Bowels have not been stimulated and in a few days a stronger purgative may have to be taken. This is why Pills and Aperient Waters never give permanent relief. Their violent action results in an unnatural movement of the bowels and it is necessary to keep taking them indefinitely.

Why ORINO is different.

ORINO Laxative Fruit Syrup is the only preparation that really acts upon all of the digestive organs. Other preparations act upon the lower bowel only and do not touch the Liver. It can very readily be seen that a preparation that does not act upon all of the digestive organs can not cure Chronic Constipation, Torpid Liver, Indigestion, Sour Stomach, etc.

For Biliousness and Sick Headache.

Take ORINO Laxative Fruit Syrup. It sweetens the stomach, aids digestion and acts as a gentle stimulant on the liver and bowels without irritating these organs.

Clears the Complexion.

ORINO Laxative Fruit Syrup stimulates the liver and thoroughly cleanses the system and clears the complexion of pimples and blotches. It is the best laxative for women and children as it is mild and pleasant, and does not gripe or sicken. Refuse substitutes.

OUR GUARANTEE

Take ORINO Laxative Fruit Syrup and if you are not satisfied your money will be refunded.
