"Truly miraculous seemed the recovery of Mrs. Mollie Holt of this place," writes J. O. R. Hooper, Woodford, Tenn. "she was so wasted by coughing up pus from her lungs. Doctors declared her end was near that her family had watched by her bed-side forty-eight hours; when, at my urgent request Dr. King's New Discovery was given her, and with the astonishing result that improvement began, and continued until she finally completely recovered, and is a healthy woman today. 50¢ and $1.00 at NEWLIN DRUG CO. # TARIFF WAR ONLY POSTPONED

(Scripps News Association)

Berlin, March 1.—The Tariff Agreement between Germany and the United States of July 10, 1900, expired today. Although the threatened tariff between the two countries has been temporarily averted by a mutual agreement, placing the United States on the basis of the "most favored nations", until a reciprocity treaty between the two countries can be negotiated, it is feared that this arrangement merely means the postponement of a fierce struggle between the two countries.

The situation is very peculiar and, the friends of an amicable arrangement in this country clearly understand the difficulties and obstacles which threaten to precipitate a tariff war which would be equally disastrous to both countries. If one of the countries were purely an agricultural, the other purely an industrial country, there would be little trouble in arranging a reciprocity treaty between them. As it is, both countries have not only powerful agricultural great industrial interests.

The only difference is this: while in Germany the industrial interests preponderate and the exports of agricultural products are comparatively small, the reverse condition exists in the United States. The German agriculturists are opposed to the importation of American meats and cereals and want to make the tariff on these imports practically prohibitive. The German manufacturers are by no means opposed to low duties on American agricultural products, so long as they can obtain low duties on their own products exported to the United States. On the other hand, the American farmers are anxious to bring their products to Germany at the lowest possible duty and would be willing to grant the most liberal concessions to the German manufacturers, but that does suit the American manufacturers, who fear German competition under favorable tariff conditions.

Unfortunately the Agrarians are as powerful in the Reichstag, as the manufacturing interests are in the American Congress and it is difficult to imagine how the various factions can be reconciled in such a way as to make the amicable settlement of the tariff question between the two countries possible. The German Agrarians have struck the keynote of their sentiments in the matter by forcing a provisional bill exorbitantly increasing the duties on the American cereals through the Reichstag. If these increases should become effective, in case of no settlement in the reciprocity question should be reached, it would practically put a stop to the importation of American cereals, meat and other agricultural products of Germany.

The following list gives the percentage of the proposed increase over the duties charged under the tariff agreement which terminated today: wheat, 105%; corn, 210%; rye, 100%; flour, 160%; lard and oleomargarine, each 25%; fresh beef, 200%; prepared beef, 250%; dried apples 160%; dried prunes, 180%; oranges 200%; hides, 60%; calf leathers, 125%; shoes according to quality, 70 to 150 percent.

Germany has reciprocity treaties with Belgium, Italy, Austro-Hungary, Russia, Roumania, Switzerland and Serbia and it would be of great advantage to the United States as well as Germany should a reciprocity treaty between Germany and the United States be arranged. The more conservative members of the Reichstag thoroughly appreciate the seriousness of the results of a tariff war between two countries and are anxious to have peace preserved even at a moderate sacrifice. The Agrarians, however, are extremely difficult to deal with and their extreme views are likely to prevent an amicable settlement of the differences, even if the American Congress should be inclined to compromise.

RELATIVE COST OF TREATMENT

COMPARING MEDICAL AND OSTEOPATHIC CHARGES AND SHOWING WHICH ARE IN THE END THE SMALLER

Measured by the good it does, by the relief it gives, by the definite curative work it accomplishes, there is no other system of treatment which is so low in cost as the Osteopathic. Indeed, it is undoubted fact that Osteopaths do not usually receive compensation that is at all in proportion to the proven value of their services.

COST OF MEDICAL TREATMENT

Some idea of what the old methods of treating disease really cost, even though the money is often meted out in little dribbles, may be gained by noting statistics. There are 200,000 doctors in the United States. This means one to every 400 people, or to every eighty families. This means that every eighty families support a doctor, year in and year out, besides expending appalling sums for medicines, prescriptions and proprietary. Does it not become apparent that the old systems of treating disease are somewhat expensive?

On the other hand, let us see what the merits of Osteopathy are, what it costs, whether the Osteopath is fully entitled to the fee he gets for his work.

In the first place, there are no drugs to be paid for, for the Osteopath prescribes none.

In the second place, there is not a chance that damage will be done or that invalidism will result from the treatment, for the adjusting of the structure that is done by the Osteopath is in thorough accord with Nature.

AS TO OSTEOPATHIC CHARGES

His only effort is to restore the normal adjustments so that the fluids and forces of the body can have an opportunity to circulate properly and do their work of curing.

Thirdly, the charges of the Osteopath are in reality not much higher than those of the fairly paid medical man and are much lower than those of the leading medical men and specialists; and the Osteopath gets better results in less time than any of these. There are fewer payments to be made.

Fourthly, the Osteopath gets at the cause of the trouble and corrects it, so that when a patient is cured he is well and not just braced up temporarily. Families which have adopted Osteopathic treatment are usually soon able to say, "Yes, thanks, we are all very well"; and they do not figure upon the doctor as one who makes daily visits, and then only absents himself for a time before beginning another costly series of calls.

A FEW WORDS IN CONCLUSION

In conclusion, it should be remembered that the Osteopath can only attend a very moderate number of cases without completely sapping his physical strength. The medical doctor can, in a given number of hours, prescribe for several times the number of patients that the Osteopath can treat; and even then many Osteopaths break down through the stress of their labors.

It is worth noting, too, that in many cases the charges of the Osteopath are ridiculously small. For instance, take the case of a patient who is cured in two or three months' time by an Osteopath after having spent years and thousands of dollars upon medical treatment without avail; take the patient who, through the skill of an Osteopath, is saved similar years of suffering and thousands of dollars in expenditures; or think of the many cases in which Osteopathic treatment, curing, averts the necessity of a costly operation, of which the outcome would be at the best very dubious. All of these things are of common occurrence in Osteopathic practice; and each of them proves conclusively that the fees received for treatment are in reality far too low. They will have to be higher eventually, and without doubt will be.—The Right Way.
