INTERESTING PAPER READ BEFORE GRANGE MEETING

THE SECRETARY PRESENTS THE GRANGE WITH A LETTER COMPLETE WITH SOUND FACTS AND REASONING

The grange is to the farmer's family what the school is to the student, and the teacher's institute is to the teacher.

It is a school of instruction along an especial line, that most interests, as is of the most vital importance to them and their interests, both in agriculture and what is being done in governmental affairs.

It has become necessary for the farmers to co-operate for mutual protection in an association where they can compare notes, exchange opinions and profit thereby.

In the Grange there is just enough secrecy to bind its members together, and exclusiveness enough to bar from its membership those who are not in sympathy and accord with its true interests and all of its members are bound together by the "Sacred tie of agriculture."

How many of the members of the Grange know, that to the Grange we owe the department of agriculture and every President beginning with Cleveland has recognized the Grange by appointing a granger as secretary.

Do you ever think when you receive your daily mail at your own gate, that you owe the privilege to the Grange? Do you know there is a cry in certain quarters to abolish both the department of agriculture and the R. F. D. as being expensive and unnecessary.

The corner stone of the grange is "To Educate and Elevate the American Farmer." A college education is an advantage enjoyed by but few farmers. "The little red school house has seen the beginning and the ending of their education, but let no one because they have been denied a high school education feel discouraged and think it is of no use for them to take a stand among the educated people. Remember that "every day is a fresh beginning," and "every morn a world made new." To all such comes the Grange with its kind invitation to join its fraternity and take up a course of study embracing all subjects pertaining to agriculture, science of the soil, stock raising, fruit culture, poultry, the home, good roads, parcel post, centralization and improvement of our country schools, policies of the Agricultural colleges, and investigation of the experiment stations.

With the education and co-operation of the farmer, the elevation will soon come. I have always thought one of the chief reasons for the boys leaving the farm, was not the drudgery, (our boys are not afraid of hard work) but the ridicule that for years has been cast upon all persons engaged in agricultural pursuits. The farmer, himself is to blame in a great measure for this. It is said, "The world takes you at your own valuation, and half of the farmers are ashamed of their own occupation. It has not been considered necessary to have an education in order to become a farmer, primary instruction in the "three R's," was amply sufficient, and if one child seemed brighter than the rest he was educated in order that he might make something out of himself, while the duller plodded on to assist in defraying the expenses.

A farmer's wife said to me a short time ago, in speaking of a son who learned quickly, "We made many sacrifices to give him an education so he could become somebody in the world. The others we knew, would never make anything but clod hopper farmers." Yet the farm is the source of all wealth. If it were not for farming all other occupations would be paralyzed. Governor Stokes said: "If every city in the country were destroyed at one blow, the farming business would still go on, and in the course of twenty years the products of the farms would rebuild the cities. But were the farms of the country destroyed, the cities would be unable to continue their existence."

The Grange is helping the farmer soliloquy to get away from the hum-drum of farm life and enjoy the social privileges their natures so much crave. It has been asserted that more farmers' wives become insane than any other class, due to the lack of society and the same monotonous round of duty. By attending the meeting of the Grange, the farmers' wives will find something to relieve the monotony of farm life and a great incentive to mental development.

The Grange is for the boys and girls as well as for their parents. But this is not to be taken that it is to be entirely given over to them. The work must appeal to all, but the arrangement is best, that appeals to all at all times, getting the young interested in those things that are most interesting to their elders, while the mature men and women are helped to renew their youth by getting into sympathy with what is particularly attractive and helpful to the young.

Now brothers and sisters of this Grange, let us all work together and pull together here in our Grange home. "In union there is strength." Let us all try to attend regularly and contribute our mite towards its success. "The Grange for the farmer and the farmer for the Grange."

Written and read by Mrs. Edith Gekeier at the last meeting of Blue Mountain Grange, on March 17th 1906.

Secretary B. M. Grange No. 345.

A Creeping Death.

Blood poison creeps up toward the heart, causing death. J. E. Stearns, Belle Plaine, Minn., writes that a friend dreadfully injured his hand, which swelled up like blood poisoning. Bucklen's Arnica Salve drew out the poison, healed the wound, and saved his life. Best in the world for burns and sores 25c at Newlin's Drug Store.
