SAN MARINO RE-ENTERIS NEW REGIME

(Scripps News Association)
 San Marino, March 28.—The small Apennine Republic of San Marino, the oldest and smallest in the world, and scarcely known outside of its narrow frontier, except to stamp collectors, has just re-entered upon a democratic regime. The Arringo, as the original representative body of the Republic is called, has once more met and the citizens of San Marino numbering in all about 1700 families, have once more been restored to their civic rights. Under the original constitution of San Marino the government of the Republic consisted of a general assembly of heads of families, the so-called Arringo, and of a Grand Council of Sixty, composed of twenty nobles, twenty citizens and twenty landowners. Gradually, however, the Republic became more and more of an oligarchy and the Arringo ultimately became a mere name, while the Council of Sixty, elected for life, and itself electing members to fill any vacancies caused by death, was practically absolute. This was the state of things when Addison visited San Marino two centuries ago and this has been the condition until the present day. During the last few years, however, there was so strong an agitation against this oligarchic system, that to prevent a revolution, the Arringo has been revived. It is now in session and there is peace and happiness throughout the reborn republic.

OPUM AND PAIN

When asked what Osteopathy has to take the place of opium as a relief from pain, Dr. A. T. Still, founder of the science of Osteopathy, gave this homely illustration:

"Suppose I were to step on a cat's tail and keep my foot there; the cat would howl and squirm and give all evidence of suffering. Now we send for a medical doctor who comes in, looks at the cat's tongue, feels its pulse, hears its howl and says: 'It is suffering severely; I will give an opiate to relieve the pain.' He does so, and after a time the nerves begin to be deadened by the drug until the cat feels no further pain and ceases to howl. But has the physician accomplished any real good? Has the foot been removed from the injured tail?"

"Suppose, instead of the M. D., we had sent for an Osteopath—what would he have done? He would have noted the same things that the M. D. did, and in addition would have begun to explore over the cat's anatomy to see if he could find anything wrong, and would undoubtedly have located the foot and removed it. What would the result be? The cat would instantly be relieved, and not merely relieved of suffering, but a permanent good would be done, as the cause of its trouble would have been removed."

This little story illustrates crudely the osteopathic idea of treatment. It is not to give powerful drugs, which can only mask the symptoms of the disease, but to search for the cause of the trouble—some physical obstruction to nerve life and blood flow in the main—and to remove this abnormal pressure. There is a wide difference between thus destroying by drugs the sanity of the nerves of sensation—which were designed to apprise us of conditions inimical to health—and removing those conditions. Why not be specific, as Osteopathy always seeks to be, and remove the cause of pressure? Osteopathic Health.

KNEW A GOOD THING AND WASN'T ALL DAY ABOUT GETTING IT

"I gave $475 to a Concern, for just such a piano, in Portland" exclaimed a lady to her friend who was examining one of those largest size, strictly high grade fancy walnut-cased upright pianos at our Introductory Sale yesterday. She was sincere. Probably she did pay $475 for just such an instrument, although we sold this style of piano for $425 during the past six months, but now is only $268. You may be sure that this lady's friend did not leave the store without having selected an instrument.

In high grade pianos we can offer you everything that is most desirable and up-to-date in modern piano-building. In the matter of medium priced pianos, it is sufficient to say that we have a complete assortment. You will find here brand new upright pianos from $337 down to $120, all for sale on terms of $25.00 down and $10.00 a month.
