THE BELOVED BISHOP MORRIS IS DEAD

'He Fought a Good Fight. He Finished the Course. He Kept the Faith'

Rt. Rev. Benjamin Wistar Morris, bishop of Oregon, and one of the best known members of the Episcopal clergy in the United States, passed away at midnight Saturday at the family home, Nineteenth and Everett streets, Portland. The end came quietly and peacefully.

For several months Bishop Morris had been gradually failing and his family had entertained grave fears concerning his condition. Not until last Friday night, however, did he give evidence of total collapse.

HIS LONG SERVICE

Bishop Morris was the oldest bishop of the Episcopal faith in America. With the exception of Bishop Tuttle, he had served more years in his present position than any other bishop. He was 86 years old and had been in the ministry 60 years, and as a bishop 58 years.

No arrangements as to the time or details of the funeral service have yet been made.

BIOGRAPHY OF THE BISHOP

Benjamin Wistar Morris was born in Willsborough, Pa., May 30, 1819, the son of Samuel Morris, Captain of the First City Troop at Philadelphia in the Revolutionary War. He graduated from the General Theological Seminary in 1846. He was married in 1855 to Hannah Rodney, of Lewes, Del. He was ordained as priest in 1847, and was pastor of St. Matthew's Church Sunbury, Pa., rector of St. David's Manayunk, rector of St. Luke's, Germantown, and was consecrated December 5, 1868, missionary bishop of Oregon and Washington.

HIS WORK IN OREGON

The first work of the Episcopal Church in the Oregon Country was superintended by Bishop T. F. Scott, until 1869, when Bishop Morris took charge. On coming to the Coast following his selection for this field, which included what is now the states of Oregon and Washington, Bishop Morris at once took charge officially and personally, and was among the most able ministers and zealous Christian workers in the Northwest. His tirelessness of purpose, combined with the wisdom of his administration, marked him as no ordinary man, and gave him great influence in every part of the Oregon Country.

Through his tireless, unswerving church in the Northwest, he found his way a true pioneer into the remotest settlements, rivaling the typical itinerant preacher of other denominations in his zeal, self-denial and fulfillment of his mission.

Under his administration his church grew in strength and its intellectual and educational interests were fostered as well as the moral worth of its communicants preserved.

Bishop Morris was also much of a publicist. His views on social and economic problems have often appeared in print. So widespread was the field of his labors that he was regarded as not only one of the leading clergymen of Oregon, but as a representative man of the state.
