A WORTHY FIGHT

The New York City Board of Education, according to the New York Globe, is waging war against the dime novel, on the principle that good literature placed within the reach of a child will normally supplant the inferior article. We read: "To do the work effectively, 9,175 class libraries have been established in the schools, an increase of 1,194 over the preceding year. New ammunition for the fight to the extent of 70,415 volumes has been added, and now the 'fighting force' numbers 316,563 volumes. How effectively the battle is being fought under the careful direction of the teachers, is shown by the fact that the circulation for the last school year reached 4,970,590 volumes for home use. In other words, each book has repeated its work on an average of fifteen times."

The War on Dirt

goes merrily on when good house-keepers rule the roost. Here's a fine place for ammunition—soap, sapolio cleaning powders, household ammonia, scrubbing brushes, brooms and mops. All you need to do is to supply water and muscular energy. Another thing you'll find out if you visit us: Whatever you buy here is as represented and as low priced as possible.
