NEW FORM OF INSANITY

(Scripps News Association)
New Orleans, La., April 21—Specialists on insanity throughout the country are greatly interested in the question of "speed insanity," a new form of insanity which is believed to have been evolved from the habit of excessively speeding by automobilists.

The matter first came to public notice through a suit, in which it was sought to compel an insurance company to pay the full amount of insurance in the case of a policy holder, who was killed by an accident while speeding in his automobile. The Ocean Accident Insurance Company refused to pay a large policy on the death of M. L. Hancock, who was killed in an automobile accident in Los Angeles, Cal., several months ago, on the ground that the company cannot pay a claim on an automobilist, as most of them are monomaniacs on the question of speeding their machines, and, therefore, the company is not responsible.

In its answer to the suit, which was filed, the company asserted that the man who was killed was practically insane on the question of speed, and that it should not be held liable for deaths resulting from the actions of a person temporarily insane. In the same answer the company asks that if it should be held liable it should be only for half the amount. The company also holds that its liability is lessened if the insured engages in any hazardous employment, and this, it is asserted, covers automobilism. Many psychologists are inclined to share the opinion that it is really a form of insanity which is developed in automobilists addicted to speeding.

ARMY UNIFORM CHANGES

Washington, D. C., April 21. It is a source of considerable gratification to army officers that the war department has refused to consider any material changes in their uniform. It is realized in the department that no matter what the uniform may be, there are those who will find an opportunity to suggest changes, all more or less expensive to the officers, who must furnish their own apparel. General Chaffee, while chief of staff, held that the uniform was on a practical basis, and his successor, General Bates, agreed with him. There is every reason to expect that the new chief of staff, General Ball, will adhere to this view. If anything is done with the uniform, it will be to eliminate some of the styles of dress which are considered useless but which are used for show purposes only. The only reason that the full dress has been retained is that in public gatherings, where army officers come in contact with representatives of other services, it is desirable to maintain a proper proportion of display. It is considered that the uniform worn for the field by the American army is the most comfortable and best suited which could be devised, and surpasses in those qualities the military apparel of all other countries. Suggestions of changes in the uniform continue to be received, but although they are examined and carefully filed, no further attention is paid to them. The only change of any importance, which has been decided on during the last few days, is the adoption of a new kind of eggings, recommended for use in the army by the Quartermaster General. These new eggings are a few inches shorter than those in use at the present time and are laced in front, instead of on the side. It is not expected that any more material change in the uniforms or equipment of the soldiers will be made this year, neither for home use nor for use in the tropics.
