NEVER CLOSE

After May the first, the sad story of the millions re wandering penniless about the streets of New York, with checks and drafts for thousands in his pockets, can not be repeated. On that day the first bank open all day and all night for the receipt or payment of money will begin its run. Instead of the traditional "Banking Hours from ten to three" the Night and Day Bank's sign will read "Never Close." Three shifts of clerks each working eight hours, will make financial transactions at two o'clock in the morning as easy as they are at two in the afternoon.

The man "who forgot to cash a check" who has "gone broke" in the course of the evening, or the visitor who has been repulsed by some heartless hotel clerk, providing he has had the forethought to have an account in the Night and Day Bank, can walk around the corner from the Grand Central Station any hour of the night and find a bank where there is no such thing as "after hours."

WHY NOT

J. Q. Richardson of lower Cove was in the city yesterday and stated a movement was taking form to commemorate the fiftieth anniversary of the battle in Grande Ronde Valley on July, the seventh, with appropriate exercises. This will result in securing and perpetuating much history that is rapidly disappearing.

EMPLOYMENT WANTED

Agent E. C. Moore has received instructions to make a careful canvass of the vicinity in and about La Grande to ascertain what the possibilities are for securing work and employment for the hundreds who are out of employment in San Francisco. The authorities there have taken these means of placing them in positions to earn their livelihood, and any company, concern or industry that may be in need of help, is requested to notify Mr. Moore and he will telegraph the bureau and thus have the desired help here immediately. In the list of unemployed laborers who are idle, are men who are skilled in every handicraft and trade. Any one desiring such help should make themselves known to Mr. Moore and state what kind of labor and the number of workman that are desired.
