CIGARETTE SMOKING

Cigarette smoking is no longer simply a moral question. The great business world has taken it up as a deadly enemy of advancement, of achievement. Leading business firms all over the country have put the cigarette on the prohibited list. In Detroit alone, sixty-nine merchants have agreed not to employ the cigarette user. In Chicago, Montgomery Ward and Company, Hibbard, Spencer and Bartlett, and some of the other large concerns have prohibited cigarette smoking among all employees under eighteen years of age. Marshall Field and Company, and the Morgan and Wright Tire Company have this rule: "No cigarettes can be smoked by our employees." One of the questions on the application blanks at Wanamaker's reads: "Do you use tobacco or cigarettes?"

The superintendent of the Lindell Street Railway, of St. Louis, says: "Under no circumstances will I hire a man who smokes cigarettes. He is as dangerous on the front end of a motor as a man who drinks. In fact, he is more dangerous; his nerves are apt to give way at any moment. If I find a car running badly, I immediately begin to investigate to find if the man smokes cigarettes. Nine times out of ten he does, and then he goes, for good."

E. H. Harriman, the head of the Union Pacific Railroad system, says that they "might as well go to a lunatic asylum for their employees as to hire cigarette smokers."

The New York, New Haven, and Hartford, the Chicago, Rock Island, and Pacific, the Lehigh Valley, the Burlington, and many others of the leading railroad companies of this county have issued orders positively forbidding the use of cigarettes by employees while on duty.

TRADE AT HOME

A discriminating contemporary suggests that when you get a catalogue from a big mail order house just look it over and see what it will pay you for your farm products. Also investigate and see what terms of credit are offered in case you don't have the ready cash; also how much it will subscribe towards public improvements in your town. Go to the assessor's book and see what part of the taxes it pays in your city. Just write and see what it will give to assist the poor of your community. After you have done this and received a reply go to your home merchant, get his prices, deduct the cost of transportation on the goods you are wanting to buy of the mail order house, and see if it is not more to your advantage to trade at home. The result of this little investigation will awaken a new loyalty to local institutions is a fact which needs no affirmation.

Clean up the town. The alleys need attention. Take a day off and clean up from lawn to back yard. Your neighbor may notice the change and work a little on his own place.
