A YOUNG DAVID

Arthur Brill, the nine year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Brill, of this city, will make a close second for David, the young man who was so handy with his pebbles and sling. History records that David had good success with a buxskin string and a smooth rock, but Arthur was equally successful with a three cornered rock and no catapult other than his good right arm. Yesterday while playing near the river, his keen eye detected a large hawk sitting on a limb of a tree, and well knowing that the presence of the bird of prey boded ill for the Brill poultry, the young gentleman picked up a sharp edged rock and promptly knocked the bird off the perch. Young Arthur brought one wing to the Observer office and the specimen was promptly turned over to the birdologist who, after making careful measurements and frequent references to the natural history, gave it as his opinion that the bird, when intact, was capable of extending his wings to a distance of five feet six inches and able to clean out the chicken yard in about three days and two mornings. Therefore the neighborhood should extend a standing vote of thanks to Master Brill for having saved the chicken industry in Union county.
