WOMEN SUFFRAGE

Some of the claims made why women should not vote.

It is claimed that women should not vote because they cannot defend that right with the musket. Neither can all men, some of the most honest and qualified would make a mighty poor shot at it.

It is claimed that a large majority of women are not tax-payers. Has it ever been determined, on strictly just terms, who are the tax-payers?

In most cases when a woman marries she devotes all the rest of her life to her home and family. While her husband works at his vocation to earn she expends her time and energies to save and to contribute to the comfort and well-being of the inmates of the home.

Without her labor and management the expense of maintaining a home and rearing a family would be beyond the means of most men. The average house keeper and mother works a greater number of hours every day than her husband does.

Let me ask this, is she not in all justice as much a taxpayer as he? If this most just and consistent rating were allowed the majority of women would be taxpayers.

It is claimed that women, if allowed the right of suffrage would neglect their homes.

As far back as we have any knowledge of the human race, the ruling possession in woman's nature has been the love of home and family. Women were the founders of the home. They were not only keepers but the home builders. All the needs of the home were supplied through their labors. Every article used in the home was the product of this inventive genius.

Through all the changes and vicissitudes the human race has experienced the home loving principle has remained in the heart of woman undiminished.

Through the ebb and flow of civilization, through the rise and fall of nations it has remained the same.

Is it possible that a principle so fixed that throughout all the ages nothing has as yet dislodged it can be eradicated or even disturbed by the possession of the right of elective franchise? Or are the women of Oregon so much less stable in character than any that have gone before even in barbaric times that they can not endure this privilege of citizenship and preserve this, what has assumed an internal passion of the woman's heart?

MARY OSBORN DOUGHTY
