O. R. & N. BRIDGES ORDERED

Contracts have just been let by the Oregon Railroad & Navigation company to McCreary & Willard, Spokane contractors, for the erection of a number of steel bridges on the main line of the O. R. & N. between Portland and Huntington. Work on these structures will be begun soon and it is hoped to complete the work by the end of the year.

This contract is in line with the heavy construction work now being done with a view to bringing the road up to first-class condition and will involve additional large expenditures. When this contract is completed, there will be no wooden bridges across any stream of importance on the main line of the O. R. & N.

The contract includes a steel bridge 210 feet long across the Sandy river near Troutdale, a steel bridge across Hood river near the town of that name, a steel bridge 420 feet long across the Umatilla river at Umatilla, a 300 foot structure of the same material across the Des Chutes river at Des Chutes, a steel bridge across the Walla Walla river 175 feet in length at Wallula, and a 100 foot steel bridge across Burnt river near Huntington. THEY WERE LOST

The composing, job force and reporter staff of the OREGONIAN drove to Howard's Meadows yesterday in pursuit of huckleberries. To their discomfiture the trail was vague and the forenoon was spent in clearing away windfalls and various other obstacles. At high noon their destination was reached and wiping the perspiration from their brows, they mutually agreed that "Napoleon's crossing the Alps" was easy in comparison to a drive over the Blue mountains.

Guided by fortune they were able to return to La Grande in time to furnish the OREGONIAN's patrons with the usual Monday issue.

MACHINE GETS FARMER'S FOOT

Ritzville Wash., July 23.—A. W. Arnick a farmer living eight miles east of town was seriously hurt while working on his threshing engine yesterday. It appears that he thought the engine was shut off entirely but when he was out on a foot board the machine started catching his feet in a way that his right foot was ground off at the instep and all but the great and little toes were taken off his other foot. He was hurried to town where Drs. Bice, Hewitt and Johnson operated taking off the torn fragments. He is resting easy today.

DRUNK AND DISORDERLY

Two strangers, Peter Johnson and Joe Allen by names, were rounded up yesterday by the police and arraigned this morning for being drunk and disorderly. Recorder Snook fined each ten dollars and as the money materialized, they were released.

LOCAL ITEMS

Geo. L. Cleaver has returned from his trip to Baker City.

A. W. Gutridge of Baker City is a business visitor in this city.

C. C. Beckley was over from Baker City yesterday on a brief visit.

Mrs. A. E. Hanes has been visiting her father Mr. A. Hall in Joseph the past week.

Jessie Thomas of La Grande is spending a few days in Baker with local friends. —Baker city Herald

P. A. Worthington right of way agent for the O. R. & N. is in the city today looking after business matters.

J. Ireland and E. C. Moore, manager of the Eastern Oregon Colonizing Company, spent yesterday in the Cove.

When the time comes around, don't forget to go to the Musical Social on the Foley lawn next Thursday evening. It will be a treat you will never forget.

Master Walter Galloway returned to his home in Union this morning after having visited here for the past three weeks with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Budge.

Miss Mable Brownell of Farmington Washington arrived in the city last Saturday evening and will spend a portion of her vacation visiting with Miss Dorothy Zuber and other friends.

Doctor and Mrs. F. E. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Causey and Mr. and Mrs. David Nelson drove to the Roy Campbell ranch yesterday where they were entertained during the day. This trip means a twenty-five mile drive.

Miss L. R. Loran, a member of the Pendleton East Oregonian's staff arrived last evening from Pendleton and left this morning for Gove where she will spend a few days visiting relatives and friends. She informed us that the thermometer at Pendleton frequently registers 110 degrees.

J. C. Gulling who Saturday was stricken with paralysis is reported to be practically in the same condition today that he was Saturday evening. His right side is affected and while he cannot use his right side to any extent, he is not entirely disabled. He can get out of bed alone but is unable to return to it without assistance. The right hand suffered the heaviest, as he is unable to grasp anything with that member.

MORE NERVE THAN SENSE

For audacity and daring, the robbery at the depot recently was far surpassed yesterday afternoon when an unknown man went into the Blue Front Saloon and walking up to a man sitting in a chair and partially drunk, thrust a hand into his pocket and removed a wallet containing a few dollars. The bartender and another man saw the performance and made quick work of grabbing the man with a perverted idea of the ways of pick-pocket, but alas he made as quick work of getting away again.

Marshall Rayburn was notified and within the hour the man was in the grim handclasp of the law.

This morning when the prosecuting attorney tried to arrange for a trial the witness for the state, the man who was robbed, was nowhere to be found. After searching for him all forenoon, it was discovered that he had gone to Wallawa this morning. In the absence of this principal the authorities are undecided just what steps to take.

The man who was robbed is John Booroy and the fellow with the smooth fingers is from Perry, and it is believed, is named Williams.

WILL FIGHT THE "HIRATES"

Pendleton, Ore., July 23.—A meeting of the Umatilla Woolgrowers' Association has been called for September 8. The object of the meeting is to discuss the question of taking such measures as may seem expedient to secure their rights to the range within the limits of the state of Oregon to the forest reserve.

Perry Gould, president of the association and the leading spirit in the fight against the Washington sheepmen, may resign in September, to take a position with the Union Stock Yards company. —Spokesman.

HELD OVER TO GRAND JURY

John Major and Walter Fletcher of Union were arraigned in Justice of the Peace court this morning on a charge of larceny in a building. The alleged crime was committed in Union and the prisoners had to be brought to this city for trial. However, the defendants waived examination to the Grand Jury and are now lodged in jail as the bond of two hundred each was not subscribed.

MARRIAGE LICENSE

The following license have been issued by County Clerk Gilham this morning: R. S. French to Era L. Trepper. The former is the son of Mrs. A. R. French of this city and the lady is the daughter of Joseph Trepper of Gove. Elmer Klawer to Leona Hoax, both of the Cove.

A BUSY GRAND LODGE

Col. F. S. Ivanhoe, who was the delegate from the local lodge of Elks to Denver last week, returned yesterday and reports that it was the busiest session of any grand lodge yet held. Besides transacting the regular business of the session the delegates adopted a new constitution and ritual. The colonel and Mrs. Ivanhoe had a splendid time and speak high of the entertaining ability of the Denver Lodge.

WHEAT IS SHATTERED

Where threshing is the county is in progress in different parts of the county it is found that considerable wheat has been shattered by the high winds of the past week. It was very dry owing to the extremely hot weather and shatters easily. In some fields it is estimated that two bushels per acre has shattered already. The grain that is threshed so far is not shivered, but is plump and well filled and is all first grade. —Pendleton E. O.
