THE HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATE

While it is true, that many of the boys who graduate from our best high schools never gain a foot hold on the highest rungs of the ladder of wealth, still an education may be worth more than mere gold, or what gold can buy.

Look for a moment at the lives of those who do not reach the apex of that proverbial ladder. If he has made the best of his opportunities, he can pick up his perhaps meagre lunch and proceed to a menial labor and feel as proud as the proudest. He has a reason to feel proud because his botany back there in high school taught him to be a keen observer of the plants and even the weeds that grow by the wayside. Isn't that worth something? There is enjoyment in it.

His physical geography back in the same school will now stand him in hand to perhaps study workings of nature in that shovel full of dirt and stones he is lifting to a flat car, and while his mate is thinking of the time for the noon whistle tarrying in his work, the high-school graduate is making work pleasure by a careful study of the different rock he sees. More real enjoyment, and better and more work for his employer. That dry study of astrology will serve him well on an evening to spend a long and weary twilight by rehearsing his lessons of years gone by. More enjoyment. Then that physics, in which his parents failed to see any possibilities of future benefit, can now be brought to bear in bringing this mortal in closer touch with nature. The graduate, whom other people say never realized any benefit of an education, can make interesting study out of that crow-bar he is prying rock with. His former chemistry now comes to the front and relieves the aching back while he studies the composition and the chemical ingredients of it during what time his ignorant fellowworkman idly wishes for something more interesting to do.

What is life's object? To be content with one's self. Is not the high school education a direct benefit then if it helps to alleviate and lighten the burdens, and in many other ways assists in bringing about the motive of the human soul.

According to present plans, Governor Chamberlain, at the head of an Oregon party, will be at landing in New York and will be one of the first to extend the "Glad hand" to "Bill" Bryan, when that worthy alights from the steamer.

Do you long to find entrance to other people's hearts? Then open that portal to your own.

The expression, "What will other people think?" is all right in its way, but it's what you know and think of your self that makes you happy or otherwise.

"Time and trains wait for no man," yet the trains on the O. R. & N. have, by necessity of land slides, caused many long and weary waits in the last two days.

Now is the time to get in line with Street Superintendent Stoner and help beautify the city. If you haven't got a shovel or a rake borrow one and get busy on that alley.

Another religious land mark will soon fade away. The Baptists have decided upon big improvements for their church home. First the Mormon tabernacle looms up, a structure that would credit any city, and now comes the Baptists with a brick edifice that is to cost in the neighborhood of nine thousand dollars. More progressiveness.

The city authorities of this city are working along lines, in regard to tramps, that is worthy of commendation. Marshall Rayburn and Recorder Snook, one with the other, have managed to keep all "Weary Willie's" still more weary, by extracting from them several days of good hard work. The streets are cleaner in two ways, less dirt and less tramps.

A tragic finish

A watchman's neglect permitted a leak in the great North Sea dyke, which a child's finger could have stopped, to become a ruinous break, devastating an entire province of Holland. In like manner Kenneth McIver, of Vancouver, B. C., permitted a little cold to go unnoticed until a tragic finish was only averted by Dr. King's New Discovery. He writes: "Three doctors gave me up to die of lung inflammation, caused by a neglected cold, but Dr. King's New Discovery saved my life." Guaranteed best cough and cold cure, at Newlin Drug Co. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

We have some new flavors this year which are going to be of universal favor on account of their delicate flavors. Hoping you will kindly favor us with an early call, so we may show you.
