It is time that those who intend to visit Boise City during the Irrigation Congress secure their credentials from the president of the Commercial Club.

The August number of Better Fruit, a new publication just started at Hood River, reached our desk this morning. It is a mechanical gem and filled with much matter of genuine interest for the fruit grower or distributor. It deserves success.

If the way the straws are blowing is any indication of the direction from whence the winds are coming, it certainly looks as though Mr. Bryan will be the next Democratic presidential candidate. Well, it may be the same ticket over again as in 1904, with a possible change in vice-presidential nominees.

The question of extending the Portage road will come up in the next legislature. It is a paying proposition although the state treasury loses money on it as it is. If it was extended to The Dalles and freight carried free it would be a paying road to the people as a whole, even if it did cost the state a little money to run and keep up.—Echo Register.

Spokane lost no time in registering her kick against what she terms unjust discrimination in freight rates. If Spokane could secure the same rates that are enjoyed by Seattle and Portland, she would soon become a jinning center. Why not? It may be the time will come when the Inland Empire may not be compelled to pay the through rate to Portland and the local rate back on all eastern goods. This is not based on justice and will cease sometime.

One of the Homestead's exchanges says: "Man owes it to himself to take a rest at least once a year. If he is farming according to modern practice, if he conducts his farm on a business basis, a short respite from his labors will not disorganize his operations. Every farmer who can spare the time and cash should consider this physical duty on its large merits. If he will do this he will take a trip or at least retire for a week or two from strenuous work." Yes! and an excellent place to go into this temporary retirement is the fair ground of your state, district, county, or other association the coming fall. There the farmers may come in contact with friends and acquaintances in almost endless number and participate in the pleasures which accompany these annual exhibitions. They've afforded the opportunity to compare notes with other followers of agriculture and thus derive untold benefit in the way of possible new ideas in bringing their broad acres and flocks and herds to the highest state of production.—Pacific Homestead.

AUGUST FOR CRIME

Criminal cases come by twos, threes, fours and half dozens, not singly, says the district attorney. In his experience of several years as prosecutor and deputy prosecutor, Mr. Phelps has discovered there must be something in the weather or general conditions that causes criminal acts. For several weeks peace reigned throughout Umatilla county, then came a flood of wrong doing the other day that was surprising in its extent from Walla Walla to the Morrow county line. It is also noticeable that criminal acts occur with greater frequency during dog days. The humor of men seems to be different at such times. They are more irritable, gloomy and mean. In this county nearly every August is a month of criminal record. During one September term of court 15 men were sent to the penitentiary. Another six. More murders have occurred in this county in August during recent years than during any other period of three month's time. Such things can scarcely be mere happenings. The regularity of the occurrences indicates, at least, that there is some general rule or law governing the actions of men of criminal tendencies.—Pendleton Tribune.
