TEACHERS ANNUAL INSTITUTE

Yesterday morning nearly every school teacher in Union county assembled in the court house when County Superintendent Bragg called the first session of the annual teachers institute which will last three days.

Leading pedagogues of the state are in attendance and will take active parts before the institute closes. After the opening exercises in the morning W. G. Hartman of California addressed the teachers about eighty strong, on the "Spirit of the teacher." For nearly an hour he held the rapt attention of the listeners. E. D. Ressler then gave a brief but interesting talk on "Essentials in the course of study" which was followed by one of State Superintendent J. H. Ackerman's admirable addresses. J. A. Churchill, who was to have been heard was not present due to death in his family. In his stead, Superintendent Mulkey arrived today to fill the vacancy. Such men of learning as President Ressler of the state normal school, President Campbell of the state university, Superintendent Mully, Superintendent of Umatilla schools Frank E. Wells, and W. G. Hartman will make the meetings instructive and interesting and furnish a source for much knowledge in some of the knotty questions that are forever looming up before the grade teacher. These men were all here this morning and will be heard several times during the institute.

Monday p. m. the following topics were discussed: "Music in the Public Schools," E. D. Ressler; "Using School Libraries," W. G. Hartman; address, Supt. J. H. Ackerman.

The second day of the teacher's institute was even more successful than yesterday, in regards to numbers as well as general interest and instructiveness. The large auditorium at the court house was crowded today with eager listeners. Besides the scheduled program, President Campbell addressed the teachers during the forenoon session. Following are the speakers:

"Child Study," E. D. Ressler; Address, President Campbell.
H. J. Hockenberry; Address, Supt. J. H. Ackerman; "Present Problems in American Education," E. D. Ressler; "Primary Reading," W. G. Hartman; "Teacher Study," E. D. Ressler; "The Spirit that Succeeds," W. G. Hartman; Address, Supt. J. H. Ackerman.

P. L. Campbell's address this afternoon on "What the profession should do for the teacher" was masterly both in logic and delivery. His line of thought was practical forcible and left its imprint on the minds of all that was fortunate enough to attend.

TO REVISE ARTICLES OF WAR

(Scripps News Association)
Washington, Sept. 4—It is proposed by the President to have the Articles of War amended. His attention has been called again to the antiquated character of the articles which, save for some minor changes made from time to time, are practically the articles of more than a century ago. He is especially interested in changes of the articles which refer to trial by court martial of volunteers in time of war.

The existing articles provide that in such an event the court must be composed of volunteer officers entirely. During the employment of volunteer regiments in Cuba and the Philippines some of the offending volunteer officers and enlisted men were tried by courts upon which sat regular officers. The courts decided that the finding and sentences in such instances were illegal, and these sentenced had the right to claim redress. This has led to the desire to have the condition changed so as to remove the restriction from the proceedings of the courts sitting at a time when volunteers are in service. It will probably be impossible to do this, since there is an enduring sentiment in Congress against the trial of volunteers by a court composed, even to a limited extent, of regulars.

There is a fear that something ill happened to the volunteer, and there is no hope that only a slight modification of the existing situation will be affected. As for the rest of the articles of war, it is proposed to have them generally overhauled and brought up to date. The draft of such a general amendment was made at the time the General Staff was organized. Col. E. H. Crowder, now the acting judge advocate general of the army was the author of the proposed amendments, but it has been considered that the time has not arrived for attempting the change, which will require action by Congress. The President's interest in the subject will probably serve to have the draft submitted to Congress in December.

NORTHSIDE CONQUERS? SOUTHSIDE

That was a huge ball game yesterday. When after some delay the game started there was a large crowd present to witness one of the great struggles for supremacy in the art of ball playing, as played by the businessmen of this city. On both sides were several players who upto within a few weeks have been in practice, but there were also men in the line up who plainly demonstrated that they knew the game regardless of the fact that they had not done a mit in years. The foremost of these is Wm. Miller. He covered the initial bag so satisfactory that it called for comment from every one present. Geo. Cleaver at short played the game like a professional.

Van Buran came up to bat for the north side and walked. Williams and Miller joined in the promenade. An error or two started Van Buran toward home followed by Williams, Miller, Crawford and Childers. This gave them an awful lead but not daunted, the southsiders came up with a little single by Cotner and who stole to third and on a hit by Childers, scored. For the next two successive innings they scored one in each.

In the third Cleaver walked and scored later. There was nothing particular brilliant about the game up to the seventh when Williams, the twirler sent the ball into a nearby potato field, and took his own time at circumventing the diamond. The trick was repeated by Scriber in the eighth only he sent the little ball over the fence in another direction. The North siders raise a hoiler, claiming that over the fence was out, but umpire Kooser, let the score stand.

The score stood 3 to 6 favor of the Norths up to the seventh, when the players from a warmer clime took a premature ascension and let in four runs. In this session M. Childers replaced Cotner in the pitcher's box. In the eighth the south scored McGee and Scriber bringing the score to five where it remained. So without anymore scores the terrific struggle ended. While the score card shows eleven to five on the Northside's tally sheet, the Southsiders are confident that they could have defeated the cold ones, but for the fact that the proposed balloon ascension was attracting the attention of their players.

The players and their positions follow:
Northside:
Van Buran c, Williams p, Miller 1b, Crawford 2b, Childers 3b, Cleaver ss, Keeney 1f, Eldridge cf, Alistott rf.
Southsiders:
Cotner p, Prowe 3b, M. Childers ss, McGee 2b, Scriber 1b, McLaughlin 1f, Wm. Seignist rf, Jim Murphy cf, Seignist c.
