DEATH OF JOHN RYNEARSON

John Ryneason, one of the early pioneers of this city and county died Sunday morning up Grande Ronde river. The funeral will be held from the family home on the farm just across the river tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. E. B. Hays, pastor of the Presbyterian church, officiating. The interment will follow in the Masonic cemetery.

Last Tuesday morning the Ryneason brothers, John and William, left for their mines, which they have been interested in for many years, up Grande Ronde river, a few miles from the Carson placers. Friday Mr. John Ryneason took sick. Saturday they started for La Grande and reached the meadows on Limber Jim where they camped for the night. He grew weaker and died the next morning at 7 o'clock. Friends at the Prospect ranch assisted Wm. Ryneason in bringing in the body which arrived Sunday evening. Heart disease was the cause of his death.

Mr. Ryneason was born in Pennsylvania seventy two years ago. In 1865, with his brother William, he crossed the plains, with the Joseph Failes train. The two brothers formed a partnership upon entering this valley which continued all of these years. In addition to a valuable farm adjoining the city limits, they were also interested in some valuable mining properties up Grande Ronde river.

The deceased was one of those noble unassuming characters, which seemed typical of so many of the early pioneers of the northwest, always ready to lend a helping hand to every needy cause. Whether at home or in the mines, his "latch string" always hung out and many a stranger and neighbor has partaken of his hospitality. Thus another of the Empire builders of this great northwest, after fighting a good fight and completing the course, has passed to the great beyond.

One sister, Mrs. Derr, resides in this state at McMinnville. The other brothers and sisters reside in Indiana.
