Here are some plain truths without frills about a sale with a Reason behind it. Understand,—a Mill End Sale is a logical result of modern methods of merchandising. It goes back to the first principles involved in the inexorable law of supply and demand. It is a direct outcome of manufacturers' problems, and producers' dilemmas.

Imagine great Mills and Factories crowded with surplus stocks, short ends, broken lines with choice bits left over from the season of busy activities. What will they do with them?

There must be an outlet somewhere. The goods must be sold somehow. These great lots of oddities and endities must be pushed out into the regular channels of trade. They must be moved out at any price. They cannot hold over.

So the big makers make a lump price on all the Mill Ends of their factories and that is where we come in. We have a man on the spot with the cash in his hand, and the goods are bought at forced sale prices, and offered to you at about regular cost or less.

That's what this Mill End Sale means to you,—simply that you get goods at a price about half what you would ordinarily have to pay.

But,—here's a page of items and prices. They tell their own story.
