SOCIETY

Yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Fred Swaney, Mesdames Swaney and G. E. McCully entertained forty-five of their lady friends at five hundred. For originality and uniqueness the party was without precedent this season. The home was profusely decorated, the autumn scheme being adhered to thruout. Two rooms were tastefully dotted with autumn leaves and the other two were decorated with asparagus ferns still retaining the red berries. On the railing between the parlor and dining room were two pretty horns of plenty, one bell pointing in each direction.

The serving of refreshments, too, was unique. While Miss Edna McCall entertained the guests with several beautiful instrumental selections, the hostesses, assisted by four little girls served "Horns of Plenty," "Tutti Frutti fillings, Cinnamon stisck and Cafe au Lait. The little waitresses Helen Bartlett, Bessie Beulhar H. Anthony and Ethel Hanley were dressed in white the dresses being covered with yellow autumn leaves. They also carried leaves in their hair. These little fairy-like creatures served the dainty dishes.

Prizes were won by Mesdames Van Buren and Fred Kiddle. The former was awarded a Ruckwood vase and the second prize being cut glass salt and peppers. Those present were:

Mesdames W. J. Snodgrass, E. W. Bartlett, Jay Van Buren, Wm. Mosby, J. J. Carr, James McCoy, Wm. Allison, Fred Kiddle, J. Gulling, H. S. Cavana, G. M. Richey, Ed. Thomas, F. A. Watts, E. F.
