A SCENE IN THE PARSIFAL

MABEL DAY, PRIMA DONNA SOPRANO IN STEWART'S OPERA CO.

LIGHT OPERA

The announcement of the engagement of the famous Stewart opera company at the Stewart opera house for two nights, starting next Friday Oct. 26, is most pleasing. This celebrated organization is making its first tour of the west, under the management of John Cort, and will present during the engagement here two of their biggest successes from the Broadway theatre New York City. On Friday night Oct. 26, the Stanislaus Stange-Engel and comedy opera "The Two Roses" will be presented. On Saturday night Oct. 27, the B. C. Stephenson Alfred Cellier comic opera "Dorothy" will be given. Both of these great operas will be costumed and mounted in the same magnificent manner as when presented at the Broadway theatre, during the New York engagement.

DAIRYING FARM FOR LA GRANDE

Mr. Sawyer, of the firm of Sawyer & Pierce, was in the city today and confirmed the report that he had purchased the fine Jersey dairy of John McAlister, consisting of thirty cows. The company is now milking ninety-five cows, employing three expert Swiss milkers. Mr. Sawyer states that he has had several experienced dairymen visit his place, which was formerly the Wade farm near Hot Lake, and all agree that he has the largest and best dairy herd in Eastern Oregon. During the past two years he has been buying the best cows in the valley and was fortunate in securing the prize herds of John L. Caviness, Peach Bros., John McAlister and choice cows from other good breeders.

Mr. Sawyer is enthusiastic over the results in dairying. He states that his present herd as a herd averages five per cent in butter fat, which means that he can make each cow net him $60 per year. As compared with the prices common cattle are selling for and have been for the past few years, Mr. Sawyer says that dairying is much more profitable. He evidently thinks so, or he would not have invested $6000 in dairy cows. He has a contract for furnishing the Hot Lake sanatorium with milk and cream and the balance, which of course is by far the greater part of his output, goes to the La Grande creamery.

SHORTHAND COLLEGE IN OPERATION

The Standard Commercial college opened this morning in the Sommer building. The rooms have been fitted up with desks and Remington typewriters and by tomorrow the school will be in full blast. Miss Slattery, the proprietor, will be assisted by Miss M. Seibrich.

Both the instructors have a large experience in commercial teaching and are well equipped for the work. Shorthand is the subject taught at present, but La Grande has been promised a modern business college provided the initial steps in this line meets with success. A school which will teach all the phases of a commercial course is what Miss Slattery is contemplating.

D. O.'S AS INSURANCE EXAMINERS

It is with pleasure I read in The O. P. of so many of our profession being appointed insurance examiners. Only three or four years ago an insurance society flouted at the idea of an Osteopath being capable of making such an examination; the accident societies would not then recognize an application for accident insurance signed by a D. O., and the same was true of railroad people. Today the accident people pay the claims without a murmur; the railroad people—some, at least, insist on a D. O. making examination and settle accordingly. Only last week a Supreme officer of the Knights and Ladies of Progress, St. Louis, came to my office and asked that he might appoint me examiner in this district, which commission now hold. To me the above recognition by great corporations shows our advancement even more than legislation.—W. T. Thomas, D. O. Sedalia, Mo.
