A MONSTER SUGAR BEET

E. F. Parr, senior member of the Parr-Logan firm, this afternoon exhibited a monster sugar beet which has been grown in this valley. The beet weighs fourteen and a half pounds, measures sixteen inches in high and has a circumference of twenty-eight inches. It is an unusually large specimen of the sugar beet.

"Grande Ronde valley fruit growers should Pickle their fruits" said Mr. Parr. We are exhibiting our fruit now alright, but in a month or two all we will have to show will be cuts and pictures. The real fruit has been wilted long since. In California, all fine specimens of fruit and vegetables are pickled and thus kept fresh until the next spring. In this way visitors can at any time see the best there is in the various lines. I am looking for a jar, if it is possible to find one large enough in the city, and will pickle this fine specimen so that next spring I can exhibit this particular beet as I can today." Mr. Parr is instigating an excellent movement and should be encouraged by co-operation of the fruit growers and real estate dealers.

DYSENTERY AND ITS CURE

Dysentery is an inflammation of the large intestine. Many suffer from acute attacks and cases of the chronic kind are very numerous. The worst forms of the trouble have been treated with great success by Osteopathic methods, the records showing that relief is almost immediate and that complete cure is often effected in a very few treatments. It is of course advisable, even when cure is brought about very quickly, to continue treatment for a time, so that the lesions causing the trouble may be fully corrected and normal condition of the tissues be re-established. The disease is due to specific "lesions," or misadjustments, in the lower part of the spine; the ribs in this region are also found in faulty position; and the obstructed circulation of blood and nerve force which results fully accounts for the trouble. Cases differ somewhat; but the skilled Osteopath is never at a loss to find the trouble and restore normal adjustments by manipulative work suited to the case. Relief and cure follow.

D. O.'S AS INSURANCE EXAMINERS

It is with pleasure I read in The O. P. of so many of our profession being appointed insurance examiners. Only three or four years ago an insurance society hooted at the idea of an Osteopath being capable of making such an examination; the accident societies would not then recognize an application for accident insurance signed by a D. O., and the same was true of railroad people. Today the accident people pay the claims without a murmur; the railroad people—some, at least, insist on a D. O. making examination and settle accordingly. Only last week a Supreme officer of the Knights and Ladies of Progress, St. Louis, came to my office and asked that he might appoint me examiner in this district, which commission I now hold. To me the above recognition by great corporations shows our advancement even more than legislation.—W. T. Thomas, D. O. Sedalia, Mo.
