There will be a famine in tan bark at the two Albany tanneries this year, as the result of the big Santiam forest fire, which swept away all the tan bark gathered in that part of the county the past year. The tanneries are getting their shipments from California.

It is the same cry all the way along the line. No coal, and with the impossibility of getting passenger trains through, there seems little probability of a change in present conditions in the immediate future. However, we are too close to tail timber to permit of any actual suffering, but it may be mighty inconvenient before the winter is over.

FEEDING CATTLE ON SUGAR

Recent statistics show considerable progress in the employment of "doctored" sugar for the feeding of cattle. The consumption, which reached 50,000 pounds at the end of December, 1905, rose to 200,000 pounds in January, 1906. If this custom were general, 500,000 tons of sugar would be consumed annually, say half of the present production, giving every day 100 grammes (3.5 ounces) of sugar per head of black cattle. The sugar can be doctored only within the inclosure of the sugar refiner and under the conditions determined by a regulation of the public administration. To 100 kilos (220 pounds) of sugar are added 2 kilos (4.4 pounds) of salt and 20 kilos (44 pounds) of oilcake, or of any powder whatever approved by the administration. This mixture circulates freely and is sold at from 20 to 22 francs ($4.00 to $4.40) per 100 kilos, say about the price of the oats, with which, at the moment of serving, it is mixed in the proportion of 20 per cent. Thus 1000 kilos of oats and 200 kilos of sugar will give 1200 kilos of sugared oats, which will be distributed, for example, at the rate of 8 kilos instead of 10 kilos of pure oats. This fodder, therefore, is economical. For oxen the sugar is mixed with chaff. Doctored sugar is beginning to be used also for the disinfection of stables, for its combustion gives a plentiful release of formal.—Scientific American.

When the world, a year ago, was acclaiming President Roosevelt's success in effecting peace between Japan and Russia, there was a general feeling that his star had reached its point of culmination, and could do nothing thereafter, but decline. In that feeling, it seems, Mr. Roosevelt himself shared. The editor of the North American Review reports him as saying at that time that he recognized that he was at his apex of moral authority and personal popularity, and that he could not stay there and could not hope to go higher. Whatever he should attempt to do thereafter to solve the problems that confronted him, would, he was certain, engender bitter feelings and leave him less popular at the end of his term than at the beginning. A few months later, during the early sessions of Congress this feeling seemed to be fully justified. Criticism of the President had become at that time so much the order of the day that he was described by newspaper correspondents as "the most disliked and dreaded executive the capital has ever known," with "hardly a single follower whose loyalty, if he may be said to have any loyalty, is inspired by the common enthusiasm of the two for any political ideal or a political principal." This state of things in Washington was admitted by newspaper correspondents generally, by those friendly as well as by those hostile to the President. The conviction in Washington, at least, was firmer than ever that he had lost his ascendancy and would be unable to regain it. Now he has regained that ascendancy so fully that with a Congressional campaign under full headway, the leaders of the Republican party and the press of the party are practically unanimous in choosing to present as the one issue of the campaign Theodore Roosevelt and his record of things done.—Current Literature.

BOY IS LOST AT POCATELLO

Pocatello Idaho, Oct. 24.—Louis Whitman the 16 year old son of a prominent minister of this city became lost in the sage brush on the prairie north of town last night while out riding. Search parties were organized and spread over the country in every direction. This afternoon the young man returned home after spending the night in an abandoned shack on the Indian reservation and suffering severely from the cold. One of the searchers is now lost and other parties have been sent out.

There is nothing that takes away the beautiful, womanly charms like a plodding, awkward carriage. There is absolutely no excuse for that as long as Hillier's Rocky Mountain is made. Tea or Tablets, 35 cents. NEWLIN DRUG COMPANY.
