EIGHT GIRLS OF THE GREAT SINGING CHORUS—STEWART OPERA CO.

TONIGHT

Tonight the famous Stewart opera company begins its engagement at the Stewart Opera house, presenting "The Two Roses" a comedy opera in two acts book and lyrics by Stanislaus Stange music by Ludwig Engländer. Of this highly successful offering of the west, in his review in the (Portland) Oregon

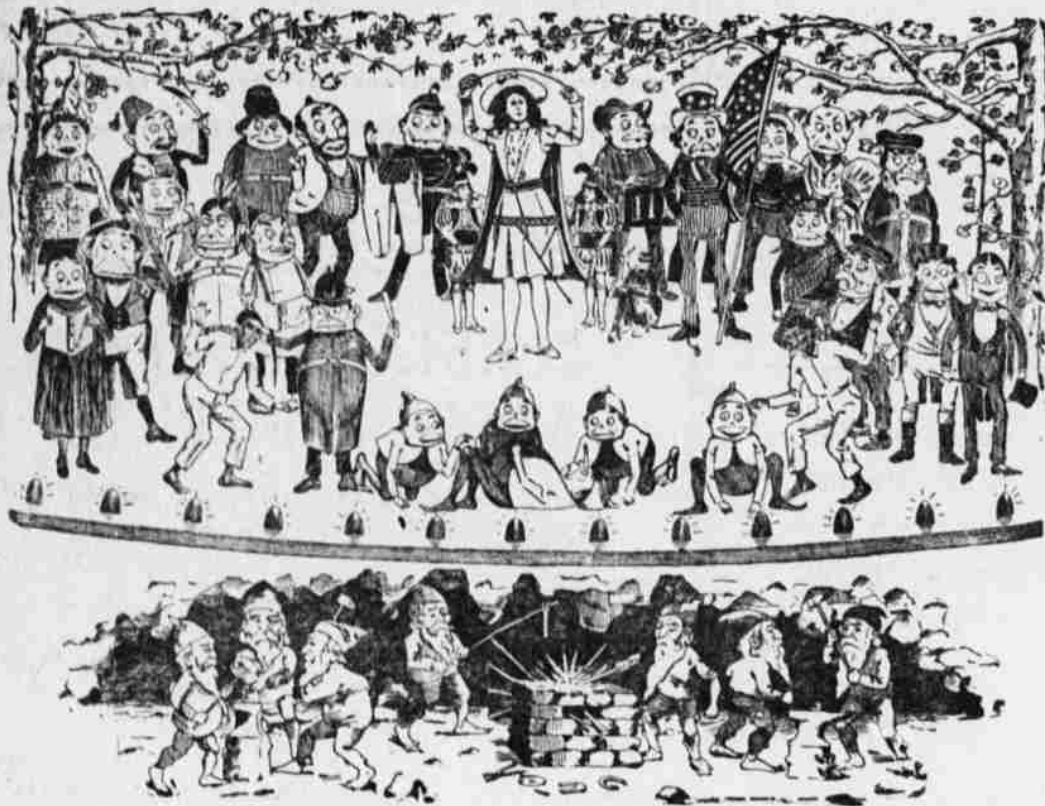

Journal of Sept. 17 said:

The Stewart company has a delicious bit of a prima donna who is charming and can run her voice up the scale ladder until you loose sight of it in the flies.

Also, the company has a tenor that is delightful to the ear, a comedian that is really funny, a character woman who knows a thing or two, and, above all,

William G. Stewart with his rich captivating voice and his captivating stage presence.

"The Two Rosés" is "She Stoops to Conquer" made into an opera. The theme is a happy one of course, and is worked out happily. John Cort deserves the thanks of a suffering public for giving such a worthy production.

The PIXIES

Some time ago Supt. Hockenberry made arrangements with W. A. Mills, of Chicago, for three presentations here of his well known operetta "The Pixies." It will be given at Stewart's opera house on Thursday and Saturday nights, Nov. 1 and 3, with a special matinee Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Over two hundred young people will take part, representing pixies, brownies, goblins, insects, pickaninnies, monkeys, fairies, butter flies, pages, flower girls, Amazon guards, Japanese maidens and Yankee Doodle girls, all in special grotesque and beautiful costuming. All rehearsals are in charge of the author, who arrived here last Sunday. He has had twelve years experience in this work covering the larger cities of the east. This is his first trip west of the Rockies, and already the piece has "colored out." It played to nearly $2000 in Bellingham, to $1200 in Aberdeen, and to $1000 in Olympia. It was given recently in Salem and The Dalles to packed houses.

The enthusiasm already aroused means a repetition here of the success which everywhere greets the inimitable "Pixies"

It tells the story of the kidnapping of a sleeping fairy by the wicked goblins, a terrific battle between the pixies and goblins, the final defeat of the goblins, the restoration of the stolen fairy, and the wedding festivities of the Prince and Queen. Forty musical numbers will be heard, embracing solos, duets, trios quartets and choruses. Fifty high school girls will be seen in a number of new drills. But the chief interest centers in the boys who represent pixies, brownies and goblins. Their grotesque make-up, and comical antics are said to be as funny as anything ever seen upon the stage.
