FIFTH NATIONAL BUSINESS SHOW

(Scripps News Association)
New York, Oct. 27.—The fifth national business show opened in Madison Square Garden today. Both from the number of exhibits and the general attendance of the public, it by far surpasses anything of its kind held here before. The United States government has officially recognized the exposition and have an exhibit in the Department of labor and commerce. During the exposition the National Ass'n of Manufacturers will hold their annual convention when members from all parts of the states have signified their intention of being present. A novel feature in connection with the exhibition will be a type-writing contest which has attracted a large number of fair contestants. Among those who will battle the honors are Miss Fritz, the present holder of the championship, Miss Mae Carrington of Springfield, Mass. a former champion and present holder of "blindfold" championship, Miss Lillian Rehmer of Chicago, Miss Lella Hann of Indianapolis, Miss Sarah Vernon of St. Louis. From abroad are entered Miss Bertha Barrington of Berlin, Miss Flossie Dupont of Paris, and Miss E. Mason of London.

COMMUNICATION

When small boys play marbles or mumble peg and grownup boys engage in the serious games of life there is generally accepted a set of rules to play by.

Journalism, or that part of it wherein questions of public policy are discussed, should be on the same intellectual plan and governed by the same rules as the parliaments and forums of the world.

Now what are the principles and rules of debate?

1st—The contestants agree to the question.

2nd—They join the issue and one advocate the affirmative, the other the negative.

3rd—They must discuss nothing but the question under consideration.

4th—They must answer each others argument, either one failing to do so he is beaten according to the rules of the game.

Mr. Eckley raised the issue on question as to the legality, fairness or a good policy of the city council creating daily official paper.

Mr. Eckley took the affirmative I the negative.

He divided his affirmation into four counts.

1st—Illegal and unjust manner of creating official paper.

2d—Graft as a result the first month.

3rd—Charges of gag rule and midnight resolutions.

4th—The Mayor's negligence in not living up to his pretensions.

I answered the first proposition and proved beyond doubt that the council's act was not only legal but it was the only policy to be pursued to save the city its liens and collect money for improvements. On the second proposition I proved that the only bill a direct result of creating the city official paper was the charges for publishing a lien notice, $15.80 which was collected as a part of the tax, and didn't cost the city anything, as to his allegation of gag rule and midnight resolution that was fully disproved by the record, and last, as to the Mayor's neglect I think it was fully proven that the powers and duties of all city officers are strictly a creation of law, and none of them can exercise arbitrary power.

Mr. Eckley never attempted to answer any of my argument nor to disprove any of my explanations, but, rather chose to break all the rules of debate, that is he engaged in personalities, he did not discuss the question nor did he answer the argument.

I stated at the outset that these newspaper controversies only resulted in an exchange of personalities by the contestants with no benefit to the reading public. The reason why this is so, is because in nearly every instance somebody has a personal grievance to air and the rules of debate don't cut any figure.

If Mr. Eckley had got the big end of the city print at 10 cents per line we would not have been regaled by this tirade on the acts of the city council and the mayor.
